U.S. Rejects Russian Peace Plan

U. S. S. R. Proposal Would Strip Japan Of All American Defense Forces

By John M. Hightower

Washington, May 19. —(AP)— The United States flatly rejected today a Russian plan for a Japanese peace treaty which, among other things, would strip Japan of all American defense forces.

The Russians had proposed that the United States and its Allies scrap their own largely-completed program for a Japanese peace settlement and start anew, with Red China cut in on the treaty-making.

An American translation of the Russian proposal, which became available here today, showed what the Soviets want in the way of a treaty.

For one thing, it would call for the departure of all foreign troops from Japan one year after the treaty was signed. This would mean stripping Japan of American defenses.

For another, the Soviets would sharply limit Japanese armed forces, whereas the treaty draft proposed by the United States would permit Japan to rearm in accordance with its own estimate of its defense needs.

The Russian note was delivered to American Ambassador Alan Kirk in Moscow on May 7. It suggested the calling of a big four foreign ministers conference in June or July to undertake "preparatory work" on the peace treaty. The four foreign ministers to be represented would be those of the United States, China, Britain, and

Communist Drive Appears To Be Sputtering On All Fronts In Flaming Korean War; Enemy Paid Tremendously For Minor Gains

By Don Huth

Tokyo, Sunday, May 20. — (AP) — Allied troops hurled back Chinese Red attacks today 18 to 25 miles northeast of Seoul in a battle of hand grenades and bayonets.

In east central Korea, other Allied forces appeared to have plugged a big hole ripped in the line at the outset of the five-day-old Communist offensive.

To the west, north Korean troops Saturday were cut down on the outskirts of Seoul in a suicidal charge.

The Communist drive by spearheads of 768,000 men appeared to be sputtering, at least for the moment. The enemy cost in blood, paid for minor gains, has been tremendous.

The Reds last night and early today tried to strike south down the Pukhan river valley in a flanking move against Seoul. But the bulk of six enemy attacks were beaten back, some in and to hand fighting.

U. S. troops counter attacked one Chinese battalion of from 800 to 1,000 men and cut it to pieces with bayonets.

In one area, south Korean troops were forced to make a limited withdrawal under attack of three Red regiments.

Over in the rugged east - central sector, where the U. S. second division had stood off 96,000 Reds, the Reds no longer were exploiting a breakthrough on the division's right flank.

"The situation on the east - central front is improving," an eighth army spokesman told A. P. Correspondent Nate Polowetzky.

But he added: "This is the damndest country in Korea and you can't tell what might happen."

For the first time since the Red offensive began Wednesday night, Allied reports from the east - central area no longer told of Communist masses moving freely through a gap in south Korean lines.

At U. S. eighth army headquarters, A. P. Correspondent Stan Carter said:

"The Communists on the east-central front launched some attacks from platoon to battalion size on the second division's right flank but had little success.

"It appeared tha American and south Korean troops had retaken the town of Pungam."

This was the first word that the Red penetration had extended to Pungam, 20 miles south of the

G.I.'s Of 14th Div. Sailing For Europe

New York, May 19. — (AP) — Nearly 4,000 steel-helmeted infantrymen filed silently aboard two transport ships today, on their way to Europe.

Some of them were going there for the second time in a decade

For others, it was a new experience.

But whatever their backgrounds, they were the vanguard of many thousands of American fighting men destined to take their places in the expanding Allied defense forces abroad.

Those who sailed today were advance elements of the U.S. 4th infantry division.

"I never saw a finer bunch of troops than these," said the division commander, Maj. Gen. Harlan N. Hartness. "If we have to, we can fight and do a good job of it."

The remainder of the 18,000-man division is to sail within a month, an additional shipload of them tomorrow.

The departure today was reminiscent of World War II scenes here, as the barracks -bag - laden column streamed up the gangways.

An army band played "So Long" and "Auld Lang Syne."

The doughboys were silent during the loading process. As the ships pulled out, some of them

Note Warning Iran Of Refusal To Negotiate Oil Squabble Received Coldly

Theran, Iran, May 19.—(AP)—Iranian officials gave an icy reception today to a British note warning that refusal to negotiate oil differences would bring "the most serious consequences."

Premier Mohammed Mossadegh refused to receive British Ambassador Sir Francis Shepherd behind the locked doors and boarded up windows of his office in the parliament building. So Shepherd delivered the note instead to foreign Minister Bagher Kazemi.

The nervous premier has barricaded himself to thwart purported assassination plots. He has vowed to stay in seclusion until the giant Anglo-Iranian Oil Company has been taken over under the nationlization law he pushed through parliament.

Iranian officials said privately the note — on which the United States had been counsulted by Britain — was "just the same old nonsense."

The British proposed sending a

Veteran Missionary To India Raps Dilly-Dallying Over Grain

A veteran of 30 years missionary service in India last night blandly charged congress of dilly-dallying over the grain for India issue and letting Russia steal the ball.

Rev. Church Smiley addressed 287 delegates attending the state convention of Christians. The convention opened here Friday and will close today.

Rev. Smiley, a native of Texas, said he did not favor giving food to India, but called for a long term arrangement under which the famine stricken nation could repay. "The people of India are not really beggars," he said.

The present shortage of food in India, Smiley said, was caused mainly by three factors. He listed them as drouth, flood and earthquakes in the various provinces of the spacious nation

He said the famine is more of a general condition rather than a concentration in any one sector of India.

Now on leave from his missionary post, Rev. Smiley and his wife are the parents of three children, all born in India. His family is now in the United States.

Earlier, delegates heard a re-

Wiley Wants President To Testify At Senate Hearing

Washington, May 19. — (AP) — A suggestion that President Truman volunteer to testify in the Senate investigation of the firing of Gen. Douglas MacArthur was tossed into the big foreign policy row today by Senator Wiley (R-Wis.).

"If the president refused, the joint committee might very well consider subpoenaing him," Wiley, a member of the senate foreign relations committee, said in a statement.

Although the proposal might appear "unthinkable" at first blush, Wiley stated, there are "more than ample precedents for such testimony" in the history of this and other governments.

"Apparently President Truman is giving information at his press conferences that we in the senate have not been able to get at the joint closed hearings," he continued.

"He, himself, has taken on the entire burden of explaining just how and why the MacArthur dismissal came about. He said the decision was his, and that his aides went along with him."

While Wiley was campaigning to get Mr. Truman as a witness, MacArthur was assured an opportunity to reply in detail to recent comments by the president and top military leaders about his ouster.

"It is very likely that General MacArthur will testify again," Senator Russell (D. - Ga.), chairman of the investigation, told reporters. "If he desires to testify or clarify anything, we will hear him."

Acceptance of Wiley's suggestions either by President Truman or the senate armed services and foreign relations committees appeared extremely remote.

Asked by a reporter if he would actually offer these proposal when the committees met again Monday, Wiley replied:

"I have not decided as yet. It will depend upon the reaction."

Another Republican, Senator Taft of Ohio, jumped into the MacArthur controversy tonight with a blast at President Truman about "consistency."

Taft referred to the president's remarks at a news conference Thursday that he had considered removal of General MacArthur for nearly a year. Later the presi-

Istanbul, Turkey, May 19.—(AP)—An irritable King Abdullah of Jordan said today he would not stand with folded arms if any aggression took an inch of land from any of his Arab neighbors.

The monarch is in Turkey on a state visit. He talked to newsmen in Istanbul's famed Dolmabache palace about warlike preparations being made by both sides in the border feud between Syria and Israel.

Reporters noted that Iraq sent forces to help Syria, that Egypt had offered to help and that Israel was reported to be partially mobilizing .

"I do not think there will be a war," Abdullah declared, "but I do not really know the future. Only Allah knows all."

A reporter remarked that the king's British - trained Arab legion had played a big role in Israel - Arab fighting and asked Abdullah, "What about now?"

BUILDERS WANT CONTROLS EASED

Ivy C. Jordan Says Restrictions Creating Surpluses

Local building activity is due for a precipitous drop unless defense agencies in Washington modify their extreme and unnecessary controls affecting construction, according to Ivy C. Jordan, member of the public affairs committee of the National Retail Lumber Dealers Association.

"Restrictions on housing and other building have come so fast, in the effort to conserve critical metals for the defense production program, that surpluses of many products are developing rapidly," Mr. Jordan said. "Yet these excess inventories cannot be used because of the emergency restrictions.

"The cutbacks in construction are only beginning to be felt, because work planned or started some months ago is not affected.

"While the controls are not as severe as in World War II, when the country went into all-out war production, they nevertheless are more restrictive than they need be under the circumstances. For some unexplained reason, the building industry is being singled out for greater sacrifices than any other major industry.

"Under the latest defense regulations, some types of construction are forbidden outright and many others, including stores, large factories, garages, office buildings, and warehouses, cannot be built unless a special permit is received from the national production authority.

"The cumbersome permit system in istelf is a serious obstacle because many weeks often are required to get the necessary permission to build, even when the

ANGOLA BRACING FOR DISTURBANCE

Deputy Warden Says Prison Is Ready For Trouble Resulting From Changes

Angola, La., May 19.—(AP)—Louisiana's penitentiary — a hotbed of unrest recently — is braced for any convict trouble arising out of administrative changes, Deputy Warden D. D. Bazer said tonight.

"We'll have a turnover in some personnel as a result of a change in administration," Bazer told a reporter. "We don't anticipate any trouble, but we're using every precaution."

The 28,000-acre prison farm was investigated this year by a committee of citizens appointed by Gov. Earl K. Long. The investigation followed an incident in which 27 inmates slashed their heelstrings in protest against "brutality." The confirmed total of self-mutilations later rose to 42.

The committee, saying it found proof of brutality, recmmended a program underscoring rehabilitation. A prime recommendation was that Angola be placed under a penologist with full authority.

This week, Superintendent Rollo Lawrence resigned, effective May 31. As superintendent, Lawrence was in general charge, but Warden Rudolph Easterly, appointed last year, handled prisoners and the farm operation.

Bazer, a former warden and one-time Caddo parish sheriff, was a member of the investigating committee. Several weeks ago he was named deputy warden.

He said the prison's security force had not been increased, but he added:

"We've alerted everybody and we're watching every move that's

Many American communities paid homage to their soldiers, sailors and airmen as the armed services marched by in a giant display of their strength in men and machines.

The slogan for Armed Forces Day, 1951 was "Defenders of Freedom."

Ten thousand marched down Constitution avenue in Washington, paced by 16 bands and reviewed by President Truman. Among the interested spectators were three military attaches from the Soviet embassy. In the afternoon the air force staged a four and one - half hour aerial display at the Boling

Ouachita Navigation Expansion Project Delayed By World Situation; Levee Board Achievements Listed

By Bert Hatten
(Of The Morning World Staff)

World conditions have hampered authorized plans to expand the navigability of the Ouachita river from Camden, Ark., to its mouth at Red river, a report from the office of District Engineer S. C. Smith showed yesterday.

The project was secured last year through the efforts of the Tensas Basin Levee District. Funds for the work were held up after the outbreak of the Korean war.

Construction had been approved for a nine-foot channel at a width of 100 feet. The present depth is six and one-half feet.

The report indicated some optimism that the project would resume should the world situation improve.

However, numerous worthwhile flood control projects have been approved and completed under the jurisdiction of the Tensas Basin Levee District, the report said.

Among those listed was the Bawcomville ring levee which has alleviated the annual threat of floods in that area. The Bawcomville project was secured after numerous demands from residents.

Citizens from the thickly populated community, south of West Monroe, carried their pleas to the Tensas Levee Basin District which was instrumental in the approval of federal funds which finally provided a strong earthen levee which was built last year.

The report also pointed out that a major gap in the continuity of the Ouachita river protection system had been closed with the construction of the Bellevue-Indian Mound levee on the east bank of the river south of Columbia.

Another major gap was closed at Fondale, just south of Monroe. Completion of the Fondale project provided a segment in the levee designed to protect rich farmlands embraced in that sector.

Smith's report gave plausible credit to the Tensas district for obtaining rights-of-way for major stream improvements on Bayou LaFourche, Big Creek and Colewa Creek. These streams are being improved by the U. S. Corps of Engineers and are considered important outlets in the drainage system.

Other flood control achievements listed with credit to the levee board were:

1. Extensive restoration of erosion protectives.

2. Construction of a major portion of the earthen levee and concrete floodwall for the protection of the town of Jonesville. In April, bids were received for additional levee and floodwall work and fo lined the decks, laughing and waving. Others just stared at the receding shoreline.

On the pier, a handful of 30 or 40 relatives and friends watched mutely.

Some wept.

About 10 per cent of the division are combat veterans of World War II.

Some of them are old-timers in the division, which fought some of the bloodiest campaigns in the European theater

Others, like Lt. John C. Turner, 24, of (2711 Fourth avenue) Council Bluffs, Iowa, have only recently returned from the battleground in Korea. Turner came home last January after his feet became frost bitten.

"This is a good deal," he said, of his new assignment to European service. "I like the army, and this is going to be much better than Korea."

Three World War II veterans, M. Sgt. George Reed, of (97 Union st.) Bangor, Me.; Sgt. James McCarty, of Polkville, Miss., and Lt. William Neely, of Beaver Creek, Ore., said they were glad to be on the way.

"I'd sooner go in this direction," said Neely, who fought in the Pacific during World War II. "It's a lot better."

Reed, who was in Europe in the last war, said: "I'm ready to go back."

The division has been in training at Fort Benning, Ga. The advance elements were routed to Camp Kilmer, N J., before boarding the navy transports, Gen. Alexander M. Patch and Gen. H. F. Hodges at Staten Island piers. Other elements will arrive at Camp Kilmer later to be shipped out.

Hartness, of Richmond, Va., who sailed with the first group, said "these men know what they're doing and they want to go."

As the ships eased out into the harbor, one soldier yelled at the army band:

"Why don't you play 'Old Soldiers never die?'"

It was stated Saturday that the approval required through banking sources and that of the government which is in charge of building supplies have been given in this case, and ground breaking is said to be assured in the near future and work will be hastened to early completion.

Already it is stated that the new bank on the north side is starting off even more successfully than had been anticipated.

The Ouachita National also owns a lot at the DeSiard-Louisville avenue junction which was purchased for the construction of a drive-in branch bank. Construction of a building on this lot will not start at once, but will come at a slightly later date, it is stated.

Shepherd delivered the communication to Kazemi at a 35-minute conference. Shepherd said their talks was friendly. The ambassador then drove to the royal palace and had an hour's talk with Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi, an act which underlined the inaccessibility of the premier.

Informed sources said there appeared little chance that Mossadegh will agree to negotiate. He has refused one such offer.

Britain gave no clue to what the "serious consequences" of such action would be. Tehran papers have given prominence, however, to the alerting of parachute troops in Britain and the unconfirmed reports that they might intervene to protect British property and lives.

The U.S. state department, in a statement issued in Washington, has urged Iran to negotiate, and has indicated that American experts will not be available to replace British technicians if this country goes ahead by one-sided action to expel the British. The United States, however, emphasized that it had not specifically approved or disapproved the British note.

Britain said she did not challenge the right of Iran to nationalize a commercial enterprise — which the British labor government itself has done repeatedly.

The real issue, she declared, is "the wrong done if a sovereign state breaks a contract which it has deliberately made."

The contract of 1933 between the oil company and Iran, the note said, provided that the terms could not be changed except by agreement, and that disputes would be settled by arbitration or the international court of justice. The contract has until 1993 to run.

Russia. China, in Russian usage, means Communist China.

The day after Moscow's disclosure that it had sent a note proposing a Pacific big four conference on the treaty, State Department Press Officer Michael McDermott denounced the move. He called it an effort to "stall" work actually going forward on the treaty and to gain a double veto for Russia — her own vote and that of Red China.

The text of the formal American reply was handed to Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin today by Assistant Secretary of State George Perkins. The text will not be published until tomorrow night (6 p.m. eastern standard time), but it was learned that the effect of the reply to Panyushkin is the same as the remarks made by McDermott—a rejection.

The row between the United States and Russia over a Japanese peace treaty has been going on for several years. The Russians have always wanted the treaty treaty written by a tight group of big powers so they would have a veto. They propose "consultation" with the smaller nations, many of which did more than Russia to defeat Japan.

The United States has always refused the big treaty-making system which produced so many years of frustration and failure in European peace negotiations. It has insisted on a system of negotiation, with or without Russian participation, which officials now hope will soon produce a treaty signed by all the World War Two belligerents of the Pacific except Russia.

dent's press secretary shortened the period, announcing that it began last August.

Taft in a speech prepared for the Panama Canal Society of Washington, asked:

"And talking of consistency, what about the president's statement that he has had under consideration MacArthur's removal for 12 months, which included the time that he appointed MacArthur to be commanding general in Korean and the Far East, conferred on him a distinguished service decoration, and sent him a private message saying 'the entire nation is grateful for your leadership'?"

MacArthur was named commanding general in Korea last June, after the north Korean invasion.

The presidential decoration was at Wake island last October, when Mr. Truman flew out there to confer with MacArthur.

The third Taft reference was to a final paragraph of a private presidential message to the general on January 13 of this year, outlining the political policies of the administration. It was disclosed for the first time after the senate hearings got underway. The complete paragraph read:

"The entire nation is grateful for your splendid leadership in the difficult struggle in Korea and for the superb performance of your forces under the most difficut circumstances."

"Talking of consistency again," Taft said, "what about the president's statement on June 11, 1948 — 'At Potsdam I got well acquainted with Joe Stalin, and I like old Joe. He is a decent fellow.' Does he still think so?"

Wiley complained that while Mr. Truman talked to the press, "when we asked his aides to give us the facts and not merely conclusions of the White House conversations, they refused to do so, and as a result our committee is stymied."

This was a reference to refusal of General Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, to discuss White House conversations about the MacArthur outer on the ground they were confidential between the president and his advisors.

Ben F. Selvidge, chief booster of the Missouri Pacific Booster Club here has returned from Little Rock, Ark., where he attended the annual conference of chief boosters of the Missouri Pacific lines. The conference was in session for two days, May 14 and 15.

Business sessions were held on May 14, when a seminal was conducted on the problems and plans of booster clubs and the conferees from all parts of the railroad's 10,000-mile system exchanged ideas for the improvement of operations within their local clubs, each of which retains full and complete autonomy.

A highlight of the first day's session, said Chief Booster Selvidge was a demonstration of the new train radio communiction now in service on all Missouri Pacific diesel-powered trains. This demonstration took the form of an instantaneous recording of actual conversations between yard crews and between conductors and engineers of freight trains. "This was a striking demonstration of the effectiveness of train radio communication," Selvidge declared, "and it indicates to what extent the Missouri Pacific lines is going to improve its service in this, its centennial year."

One of the outstanding events of each conference of chief boosters is the annual luncheon and, said Chief Booster Selvidge, "the program at the luncheon this year compares favorably with that presented at past meetings. The principal speaker was C. Hamilton Moses, chairman of the Arkansas resources commission and president of the Arkansas Power and Light Co. He gave a most interesting account of the methods followed in attracting industry to Arkansas by 'conditioning' the various communities of the state so that they might care for the new factories and mills which came into the community."

Drawling southerners twanging midwesterners and a couple of spice-tongued "Yankees" are getting their geographical licks in during a navy supply corps training conference at eighth naval district headquarters here but the subject under discussion remains the same in all sections of the nation.

Raymond G. Kilpatrick naval reserve lieutenant commander is representing Monroe as one of three Louisianians in the group. He is the husband of Mrs. Margaret J. Kilpatrick 1204 S. Fourth St. in Monroe.

Conferees are discussing plans and swapping ideas on navy money. Since navy supply officers are confronted by continuate dollar signs they are being taught how to spend save stretch and account for the navy's dollar bill.

Also on the agenda for study are service travel instructions logistics packaging and materials and supply department duties afloat.

Instructors in the special class are from the navy's supply corps school in Bayonne N. J. Forty-two naval reserve supply corps officers from 19 states are attending the school during annual two-week active duty training periods.

Highlight of the two-week course will be an industrial tour of the Port of New Orleans aboard the yacht Good Neighbor with trainees as guests of the city.

Classes end on May 25 when students will be presented diplomas by Rear Adm. W. K. Phillips USN district commandant.

Shell Advertising Firm Will Handle Has-To-Go

Ray R. Updegraff, secretary-treasurer of the newly - formed Has-To-Go Laboratories, Inc., of Monroe, announced Saturday that the Shell Advertising Agency of Monroe had been selected exclusive advertising agent for the company.

The new firm, beginning large scale production of the automotive additive for which it is named, has planned an extensive advertising budget, according to Updegraff.

"In our opinion," he stated, "advertising is one of the bases of business success, and will be of primary importance in the future plans of Has-To-Go."

U. N. TROOPS

North of Seoul, the enemy apparently had pulled back after moving close to the old Korean capital.

In at least two places, American tank teams stabbed out northward to determine the enemy intentions. One found the road empty as far as 11 miles north of Seoul; the other bumped into a fanatic Chinese infantry attack northeast of Seoul.

Officers of the U. S. second division, which weathered the furious storm on the east - central front, estimated Chinese casualties totalling 35,000 or more in that narrow sector alone since the great Red push began Wednesday. It was the most concentrated single assault of the entire Korean war, with 96,000 Chinese almost but not quite succeeding in overrunning a single U. S. division.

Four battalions of North Koreans (possibly 2,400 to 4,000 men) slammed against Seoul's outer defenses in broad daylight Saturday. They were repulsed with tremendous slaughter after charging into allied mine fields and barbed wire.

Allied defenses stood fast in the central front "anchor" against steady Red pressure. Thundering air and artillery attacks held the Reds at bay.

Field dispatches said the whole 100-mile wide Korean front quieted somewhat Saturday afternoon while the Communists regrouped their shattered legions.

On the east-central front AP Corerspondent William C. Barnard said the U. S. second division and two south Korean divisions had been hit by 125,000 Chinese shock troops beginning Wednesday.

As the offensive gathered momentum, the two South Korean divisions were quickly routed. With its east flank thus exposed, the second division was hit by an estimated 96,000 Reds.

Three battalions and two companies of the second division, 3,200 or more men, including French and Dutch units, were engulfed when the South Koreans gave way. But the trapped force broke out and rejoined the division.

The second, commanded by Maj. Gen. Clark J. Ruffner, held new defenses north of Hongchon Saturday.

Official frontline reports said 12,000 Chinese were killed trying to wedge through the Allied east-central lines.

Various officer estimates indicated the Reds may have suffered at least 35,000 casualties—killed and wounded—from ground and air action on this front.

SHOOT REDS OFF TANKS

19. — (AP) — A fighting column of West-Central Front, Korea, May American tanks wrought havoc in the Chinese rear today, rushing eight miles through swarms of Chinese who clambered over the

At times the tanks fired on one another to knock off the Chinese. Almost from the beginning American artillery burst shrapnel directly on the column to hit the Red attackers.

The column, commanded by Lt. Col. Henry Byorum of Minot, N. D., pushed out from U N lines just after dark accompanied by infantry and half tracks. The infantry was left behind after a few miles. The Chinese began throwing mortar shells, grenades and small arms fire at the tanks. Several minefields were blasted from the road by the tanks' 90 mm. guns.

Eight miles within Red territory above Kumgong, the Chinese waited for the patrol to reach a narrow road cut from the side of a mountain.

There, the Reds leaped in swarms down onto the tanks.

They exploded two Bangalore torpedoes (a type of pole charge) against the tank of Sgt. Arthur Knuttilla of Hancock, Mich., temporarily stalling it.

Cpl. Doyle Boone of Purcell, Oklahoma, the tank driver, said, "we got out of there because of the colonel. His tank opened up on us and blasted the Chinese off, we still had parts of Chinamen plastered on the tank when we got out."

Col. Byorum's tank was under similar attack. So were other tanks ahead and behind.

James R. Broussard of Abbeville, La., the gunner, opened up with his machinegun on the colonel's tank. He swung the turret around to fire on the tank behind him when it was hit.

"When I ran out of machine gun ammunition I used high explosives on the 90s," he said. "I must have killed 30 or 40 with it during the day," he added.

Taft Accuses Truman Of Sacrificing U. S. Boys

Washington, May 19.—(AP)—Senator Taft (R-Ohio) tonight accused the Truman administration of "sacrificing the lives of American boys" by barring use of Chinese Nationalist troops in the Far East.

Taft, chairman of the senate Republican policy committee, also fired back sharply at Mr. Truman for saying the Ohioan's proposal to hold the American armed forces to 3,000,000 men — 500,000 less than the administration's goal — was "an invitation to war."

In a speech prepared for delivery to the Panama Canal association of Washington, Taft said:

"Everything who knows anything about it knows there is a tremendous waste of personnel in the armed forces as well as in the spending on money for supplies.

"When the armed forces are going to call on us for three-fourths of our entire budget for a period of 10 years, certainly they ought to be forced to find the means of accomplishing the same results with less money."

Taft did not mention Mr. Truman or anyone else by name in alluding to the administration's policy of keeping Chiang Kai-shek's Formosa-based troops out of the war in the Far East. But he obviously was leveling criticism at the president and his advisers in declaring:

"Those who refuse to use Chinese Nationalist troops are sacrificing the lives of American boys."

Mr. Truman has taken the position that use of those forces—as advocated by Gen. Douglas MacArthur—might contribute to bring Russia into the conflict and explode the Korean war into World War III.

At the senate inquiry into Mr. Truman's dismissal of MacArthur, Secretary of Defense Marshall and Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, have supported the administration's policy regarding Chiang's forces.

Mr. Truman's criticism of Taft for suggesting a smaller U. S. armed forces goal came in a speech tonight, Taft said:

"The president suggests that a proposal for more efficient spending of taxpayers' money is in some way inconsistent with a more aggressive war in Korea along the MacArthur program.

"Of course this is nonsense. It is cheaper to fight a war with the soldiers of foreign nations, even if we have to equip them, than with American boys, and there is much less loss of American life.

"The sooner we can end the Korean war by aggressive measures, the fewer lives we will lose and the less money we will spend."

Taft said Nationalist raids on South China and organization of guerrilla forces there "should at least divert Chinese Communist armies from their violent attacks today in Korea."

MacArthur, too, has contended that use of Nationalist troops in any way Chiang sees fit would ease the pressure on the Allies in Korea.

In proposing that the armed forces goal be reduced by 500,000 men, Taft said that as recently as last December—well after the start of the Korean war—the joint chiefs of staff had recommended a goal of 2,780,000 men.

"Until 1951," Taft said, "the president himself never suggested even 3,000,000 men. . ."

U. S. MAY FIGHT SMALL CONFLICTS

Admiral Sherman Says Small Wars May Be Necessary To Defend World

Louisville, May 19.—(AP)—Admiral Forrest P. Sherman said tonight the United States may have to fight a whole series of "relatively small wars" if it intends to maintain its defense of the free world.

The chief of naval operations did not say whether he meant wars like the Korean conflict, or something bigger or smaller.

But in an Armed Forces Day speech prepared for delivery before the Pendennis Club, he stated:

"Unless we are willing to see the free world gradually grow smaller and less able to defend itself, we must face the possibility, though not the certainty, of war—possibly a series of relatively small wars—possibly a general war If we face it with fortitude and conviction, the possibility will become less."

Sherman said the fighting in Korea may decide the fate of the United Nations as "an organization to maintain international peace and security."

"The weeks ahead will test the readiness of the member nations to strengthen the organization and make it survive," he added.

"We accepted conflict in Korea with the hope of maintaining the United Nations as an instrument of world peace. On the success of the United Nations in Korea may depend its survival as an organization to maintain international peace and security.

"We have acted promptly and contributed heavily to make it successful."

The naval chief warned that the United States cannot depend completely upon anything but its "own military strength" to preserve the nation's security.

"We must be ready to fight at once," he said.

Readiness to fight, he added, is necessary because "we cannot depend upon Allies to hold the line until we are ready. We cannot train our initial forces after war has come."

The admiral outlined the U. S. program for the present period which he described as "The Grey Area" between all-out war and peace.

. Increase U. S. military strength to a level that "will certainly prevent disaster," and deter aggression

2. Deploy military forces in Europe and the Mediterranean to deter aggression.

3. Give all possible support to the fight against Communism in the Far East.

4. Assist U. S. Allies to build their economic and military strength.

5. Make sacrifices at home and produce the goods and services needed to support the American way of life.

Resistance To Moscow

Whatever value the iron curtain may have is to put a screen between the internal troubles of the Russian empire and the remainder of the world. At the moment it doesn't seem to be working very efficiently.

The mounting troubles within the spreading confines of aggressive Russia are too violent to be hidden.

Russia is purging tens of thousands in Czechoslovakia, including a former official who came to power under Stalin when freedom fell. All along the line through middle Europe the underground is at work.

Spurred by the example of Tito in Yugoslavia, people in Poland, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria, Austria and Albania are making bold to depart from the Moscow line. Farther west in Italy and France, where Russia has no direct controls, the Communists are splitting along the line of whether Moscow is to boss them fully or not.

In this there is a hope and a danger. The hope is that the Russian empire is already too unwieldly to function and will fall apart. The danger is that the dictators in the Kremlin will decide the solution is more sweeping controls in the form of military invasion and attempted conquest of all of Europe.

In any event, the Moscow way is doomed. The Russian system of despotism is hated in the world, and the more Russia expands by infiltration or violence, the higher its troubles will mount. There is nothing further to be gained by Russia in any direction, and only grief for the whole world if Russia tried to expand its impossible system further.

Right And Wrong Way

Charges that army engineers are suppressing facts and information that would prove their flood control plan for the nation to be based on obsolete principles should not be dismissed by the average citizen, who must foot the bills, without serious consideration.

This charge is made by Elmer Peterson, former Kansas newspaperman, who has given the matter serious study and investigation and knows whereof he speaks. Specifically, he charges this information is being suppressed by the army engineers for political reasons.

There is sharp contrast between the plans for flood control being exploited by army engineers, at great public cost, and the more sensible and proved system which may be summed up in a few words: "Stop water where it falls!" Army projects now under way in the southwest have for their purpose draining of all surplus surface water into the Gulf of Mexico, or concentrating it behind large dams on major streams.

This latter plan has failed to solve the problem of major floods, has lowered the watershed in the Great Plains states, and has contributed to further drouths.

Mr. Peterson has joined in a rising chorus of demands for a series of small dams to retain the potential floodwaters in tributary streams, keeping the water where it falls. Comparative costs—as well as results—are all in favor of the small-dam idea.

Steady Does It

Golfers the world over have a maxim from one of the best of them, now dead at 80: "Steady Does It!" This counsel to nervous linksmen is not new, but it needs frequent recalling. Its proponent was James Braid, one of the longest drivers known, long called, with not much originality, "the grand old man" of British golf, who played the game for 76 long years, having begun at the age of four.

At eight he was proficient enough to win a junior caddies' tournament from boys much older, and his score was a full 20 strokes under that of his nearest competitor. From then on golf was his vocation—for, after caddying, he became a clubmaker—and his avocation.

It was not until the age of 23 this British giant, every inch of him a true sportsman, turned professional. Five times he won the British National Open championship, the last 40 years ago. It was only this year that the accolade of his achievement came to this man who had taught the Prince of Wales, now the "Dook" of Windsor, to play. This was when he and two other British professionals were made members of the Royal and Encient Club of St. Andrews, the only professionals so to be honored in its long history.

American golfers should long remember James Braid as the man who, with 76 years of play to do it in, made the phenomenal record of 18 holes-in-one. On his 77th birthday he shot the last of these on the Walton Heath course, the 185-yard No. 10. He rightly called golf "a very dogged and persistent sort of game."

On his 80th birthday, disregarding the infirmities of age, he tried for a 79, one less than the number of his years, but the best the poor old fellow could do was 80! That would be a triumph to many golfers in their 20s. For him it was no occasion for sorrow, for up to the last time he ever addressed a ball he never forgot "steady does it!"

SPRING

The symphonic rhythms of time have reached another thrilling crescendo. Jaunty zephyrs hum their fragile melodies. Ballets of clouds were never more graceful. The music of serenity plays upon the soul like a virtuoso. The spirit dances—and the mysterious telegraphy of joy is transmitted from heart to heart. . .A full chorus of nature's wonder - workers are chanting their love songs. The radiant benediction of bright days lights up the world. And the exhilarating tingle in the air is in tune with pulsebeats.

Spring is an awesome natural phenomenon as well as an inspiring personal miracle. Temporarily the world is a toy and all of us are children. . .There is an inevitable resurgence of life beneath the soil and within humanity. Brooks run swifter and the step is quickened. The revival of beauty in the meadows is reflected in the happiness of people. For this is the season that renews the primary essential of life—hope.

Without hope all of us would be rootless, withering and waiting to die. With it mankind has been able to survive past tragedies—and it instills the courage to face new ones.

The myriad meanings of Spring are as diversified as human beings. It may signify the sleeping beauty of a sun-drenched forest or the roar of a crowd at a ball game. It could be a field of flowers curtysing in the wind or the bubbling delight of youngsters in a playground. It might inspire lovers to erect castles in the air or bring others back within the cathedral of their youth. It could inspire faith in the future or recall the everlasting happiness of a childhood memory.

The meanings of Spring are mystical and physical. Philosophic and psychological. Poetic and practical. . . A scientist can explain the changing of the seasons with mathematical symbols. Poets see it in terms of charming images. A child celebrates it with a romp in the park. A philosopher translates it in the form of ideas. To a farmer it inaugurates another business season. And to a General it might mean the strategic time for launching an offensive.

Nature is the original democracy — powerful and ageless. It shares its wonders with jungles and the most civilized communities. The enjoyment of its magic is not based on monetary value. Its glories are available to all who are alive. Every infant receives its priceless heritage. . .Nature clothes the poorest as well as the richest nations with its luxurious and exquisite foliage. There are no restrictions because the color of a rose is red — or a blue bell is blue. Winds have no national boundaries, and no country has a monoploy on sunshine. The getle glow of moonlight throws its shimmering cloak across prisons and mansions. Its beams do not require passports to reach the mud huts of Africa or the skyscrapers of New York. And no iron curtain can prevent people from gazing at the stars.

The great democracy of nature is a fusion of symbolism and realism. Its overpowering reality is applicable to individual and international problems. . .How can anyone view the mighty redwoods (that have outlived a hundred tyrants) and not have deep faith in humanity's eventual triumph over the current despots? How can anyone experience the miraculous grandeur of the changing seasons and be an atheist?. . .Make no mistake about it — psychiatrists have not accomplished as much in alleviating anxieties and fears as the loving caress of a beautiful Spring day.

Springtime at its best offers a profound spiritual experience. It teaches the prime requisite of devotion to religion: Humility. . . . Mankind's achievements are puny when compared with nature. The atomic bomb is a simple gadget when contrasted with the ingenious and complex natural machinery that makes grass green. . . The plane is simply a poor imitation of an eagle.

The greater works of art merely reflect nature. It is well known that the masters in every artistic field are those who best mirror nature. Every dawn the sky is used as a canvas to point the bursting rainbow of a sunrise. No art museum includes a masterpiece of comparable beauty. Sculptors cannot hope to match the majestic contours of mountains carved by the sun and snow.

You can measure the extent of a man's ignorance by his lack of humility. In this whirling fragment of a star—it must constantly be remembered that we are sustained by the forces of nature. Conceit becomes an empty emotion when challenged by a single fact: The sun is the source of every form of life. If that fiery globe should cool—humanity wourl perish.

Down through the ages there have been barbaric leaders who would sell out civilization for a slice of real estate to extend their tyranny. They view history in terms of personal power and international hatred. . .They would destroy a million years of evolution and force mankind to live by the code of the cave-man. They would make the world a jungle where the only test of survival is brute strength. Yet their barbarism has always been rebuked and refuted by the promise and performance of Spring. This is the season that inspires happiness of the soul. Poverty cannot prevent it, chains cannot enslave it, time cannot wither it, wars cannot destroy it—for it belongs to eternity.

The advent of Spring offers the supreme irony where American

THESE DAYS

WHAT ABOUT THE KOREANS?

We are constantly being told how many Americans and Chinese are being killed in Korea. But what about the Koreans? How many Koreans have been killed? How many babies have died of shell, of shock, of starvation?

This war must seem so unbelievable to tthe Koreans. First, their country is promised its independence. Then they are told that they are being united. Now they know that they are being eternally united in death.

These great men who sit in Kremlins and Pentagons seem to have forgotten altogether that human beings are not lice; that every human creature upon this earth is entitled to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, to say the least.

The monarchs who sit about planning the future treat mankind as though nothing counted but their machines of destruction. General Douglas MacArthur sought to bring that Korean war to a quick end, so that we could get out of that damned spot and bring our sons home.

But the great statesmen, the geniuses of the United Nations and the state department and Downing Street had planned it differently and their plans go awry with each new twist of their immature minds. But people die. That is what is so important — people die. Already more than 10,500 Americans have been killed in this stalemated war. We do not know how many Chinese have been killed; we do not know how many Koreans have been killed. And they are people, too.

Korea used to be called the hermit kingdom. They kept out of the so - called world and were unbothered. Now, they have been made a major item in the news. The word, Korea, now appears in headlines. Even children have heard about Seoul and Inchon. But Koreans are being killed and Seoul has become a heap of rubble.

Seoul has been the capital for nearly 600 years but now is a mound of broken stone. Who is so mighty that he can smash other people's worlds without mercy? And who is so all - powerful that he can say that Koreans can be wiped off the face of the earth, but that Chinese Communists may live in a sanctuary and that Soviet Baal?

What heathen misery has come over us that we have lost all sense of pity, mercy, compassion; that the innocent are even more punished than the guilty; that homes are destroyed and temples desolated and the world has not even a tear for the wretched people whose only crime has been that they were born in the wrong place!

I sat recently with a group of those very sure men who never doubt that their machinations and tricks will bring them wealth and power. Some of them were of the kind of business men who live on the cupidity of politicians. They know how to arrange things. While they are generally regarded with great favor among the people because of their success, it has become increasingly clear to me over the years that when they sing paeans over a public official unison, sure as thunder that public official will show up sooner or later as a crook o a charaltan or swine. As a reporter, I am always suspicious of the mastes of the quick buck.

And now they hate General Douglas MacArthur. Whenever one meets these men, they speak badly of MacArthur. They whisper gossip about him. They say, "He got rich in the Philippines!" I like to say, "You got rich in New York by selling black market sugar or hot oil!" of what avail is it to give them the lie? They are proud of their lies, just as some Americans are proud of running the China blockade. It is not their sons o grandsons who died because they ran the blockade.

And when their sons are involved, they will know some politician who will get desk jobs for their offspring in Washington for the duration of any war.

These people hate MacArthur because they fear that a moral upsurge might drive the present brood of fixers out of Washington and they will have to make new connections, which they may not be able to do.

Just as they never give Korea a thought, so they actually never give American a thought. They only give the dollar a thought. They are our weakness, for they produce an emptiness in the soul of anyone who listens to their obscene prattle.

AMERICA FIRST

There are those who say that an "America first" stand is a selfish attitude, is an isolationist attitude. I don't think so.

In my opinion, the best way the United States of America can serve the cause of freedom in the world is by continuing to emphasize the principles upon which this nation was founded, is by continuing to demonstrate to the peoples of the world what can be accomplished by a free people in a free nation.

If, by entangling ourselves in certain phases of the United Nations, we allow these principles to be subjugated or limit the freedom which we have attained in this country, then we have not only done our own nation a disservice but the cause of freedom everywhere.

Some sort of working arrangement among the nations of the world to enforce peace is highly desirable, but recent happenings indicate that in our first blush of enthusiasm to participate in such an organization, we have entangled ourselves in a manner that may harm freedom more than it will help it.

The chances are that this question will loom larger in the days ahead. As a matter of fact, it perhaps underlies our foreign policy debate in this country at the present time, whether we realize it or not.

The central point at issue in this debate, aside from the firing of MacArthur, is whether or not to risk bringing Russia into the war through expansion of activities as recommended by MacArthur. And it is rather clear by now that our failure to prosecute the war more vigorously has been due to the reluctance of our Allies in the United Nations to do so on account of this fear.

So far as the firing of General MacArthur is concerned, that is a good illustration of the immoral acts that can be brought about by the "entangling alliances" which George Washington warned us about in our early days. For it was an immoral act! No one questions the legal authority of the president to fire MacArthur, but anyone with any sense of decency and justice would certainly question his moral right to do so and especially the despicable way in which it was done. One of the great failings now apparent in too many men in our public life is the attitude that because an act may be legal it is also moral. That does not necessarily follow at all. There are some laws higher than man-made laws.

And so far as fearing what Russia may do if we attempt to bring the Korean war to a quick and successful conclusion, the United States has never been given to fear and it is tragic that we should appear to be so now. It would seem to be much more sensible to worry about winning the war in which we are engaged than to worry about winning a war in which we might become engaged. And we must not forget that no matter how many of the enemy we are killing, their manpower is almost limitless and the meatgrinder is at the same time inexorably taking the lives of American boys day after day and week after week.

And in the name of all humanity, what about the Koreans themselves? They seem to be the forgotten people. In what has aptly been described as a "Yo-yo war," we have been rushing up and down the peninsula of Korea destroying their land and their cities and their people. General MacArthur said it made him sick at the stomach to look at it—as it would anyone with a sense of humanity in his soul. Perhaps a million Koreans have already been killed, to say nothing of the suffering and loss of those who are left who drift like human flotsam on the tide of war.

If we continue to fight the war in such manner, how would some other people in some other spot that might become involved in like manner feel about the prospect of their land being ravaged and their people destroyed in an indecisive war? Would they not perhaps prefer having no part in it?

It is my considered opinion that, in order to survive, the United Nations must have the courage to take the decisive steps necessary to win this war—and the United States must provide the leadership that will instill this courage.

BASCOM TIMMONS

You will hear, among the curbstone politicians of Washington that 1952 maybe the supreme test of the convention system of nomination candidates for president of the United States.

That has been said many times before, by disgruntled political leaders, by high minded folk who assert that all politics is essentially corrupt and even by some candidates who have felt that they did not have a fair chance for presidential nomination under the firm hand of the ruling political organizations.

The American system of nominating candidates for president and vice president is one of the unique and characteristic features of the most successful republican form of government in the world during the last century. There is not space here to elaborate upon it but it has steered this nation in the right direction for more than a hundred years, and under normal conditions it would continue indefinitely.

It may be a sad commentary upon the convention system that the two major political parties seem to be running out of candidates. An apt illustration is the recent Republican meeting at Tulsa, Oklahoma, where a three day session of G. O. P. leaders did little more than resolve upon Chicago as the place of meeting in July 1952. Next week the Democrats will mee tat Denver for a similar go-round, to bring the western spokesmen for the party together, and will probably accomplish little more.

These two meetings, both west of the Mississippi river, have presented or will present as the probable leading candidates, Senator Robert A. Taft (Rep.-Ohio) for the Republicans and President Harry S. Truman for the Democrats. With those two proposals powerful elements in their respective parties will take issue. That of itself is no threat to the convention system. It has withstood worse threats. The reasoning of the curbstone observers primarily is that when conventions break down to the point where there is only one leading contender in each party, the convention system faces collapse.

That contention has been advanced many times, but has faded out after the presidential tickets were confirmed in heated and dramatic convention sessions. It gains some force in these times because of internal dissension over foreign policy and Republican contention that the two party system should be extended to southern states.

Unless the United States should be pushed into World War III by Communist attacks, the convention system and the two-party system should remain intact for another presidential election, participants in party conclaves believe. But the shortage of presidential candidates can't be overlooked.

Republicans at Tulsa opined that Senator Taft was their most likely choice, though they seemed to feel he has lost prestige during the debate over foreign policy following General Douglas MacArthur's return to the U. S. Democrats at Denver are faced with the terrific slump in public regard for President Truman.

If the outlook were not serious, the talk of General Dwight D. Eisenhower as a possible nominee by both parties would be amusing, but neither can count the general as "one of us." Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York, General MacArthur, former Governor Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, now president of the University of Pennsylvania, all have taken themselves out for various reasons, though they remain available. The Democrats have a plentiful supply of possibilities, mostly from the south, but none of them has any strong impetus behind him as yet.

The argument can be made that if the convention system reaches a point where apathy discourages all but one leading candidate, public sentiment, demanding a right to be heard, could overturn it in favor of some form of nationwide preferential primary. The "favorite son" system of bloc voting, the trading of votes which is part of the American convention tradition, seem to be fading as various leading political figures announce they will not participate in this time honored game for one reason or another.

It might all be summed up in the observation of one thoughtful southern Democrat, not friendly to the president, as follows:

"This country has reached the point where it has about 6,000,000 jobholders and jobseekers friendly to the federal administration. They have two, three or more votes dependent on or beholden to them. That mounts up to between 18 or 20 million people, who will support the administration in power, both for nomination and election. That's the handicap any opposition party has to face. It was demonstrated last time, and it may be equally effective next time.

It's true a lot of those votes are in the south. But by that very fact they serve to continue the convention system. Perhaps it does not give the best results, but for the present, talk about abolishing it is just that—no more."

Public Forum

Monroe News-Star
Monroe, La.
Dear Sir.

An article was published in the News-Star on May 17 that would bring anger to any true Texan. This article stated that a group of Louisiana servicemen in Korea resented being thought Texans, as their commanding officer flew a Texas flag. Furthermore, a certain official in Baton Rouge spoke of the "aggressiveness of Texas."

Well, it's hard to understand why those boys wouldn't like the honor of being classed as Texans. However, maybe this whole deal works the other way around. It just could be that the Texans are also glad the Louisiana flag was sent. Only real Texans deserve to be called "Texans" and no such horrible mistake such as calling a Louisianaian a "Texan" should ne made.

Thank you for straightening this error out.

A Loyal Texan.

New York Day By Day

New York— Hollywood is aching for another reform blast. Two unmarried stars recently junketed to Manhattan to exploit . film. The studio checked them into the same hotel. When they quarreled and he moved elsewhere to board with a pal, she overdosed with sleeping pills. Only her awakening and discretion of a medico kept the case off police blotters and front pages.

Full Circle—Nancy Kelly moved to the Booth with "Season in the sun," and remarked: "This is where I came in." Nancy was only 10 when she played her first stage role on those boards with Louis Calhern and Sylvia Fields in "Give Me Yesterday." . . . Pals of Nicky (Blair House) Blair and Toots Shor are now the rope in a tug-o'-war. Although both restaurateurs have been buddies for years, much of their current wine-and-dine trade is from mutual friends. . . . Rosalind Russell is sounding out Leland Hayward on the possibility of reviving "My Sister Eileen" with music. But he's convincing her to do a new play, "My Wife-in-Law" for a return to Broadway. . . . Songbird Mary McCarty speculates that Washington may be withholding approval of (RCA or CBS) color television until after dust settles on the MacArthur mess. After all, tinted telecasts might have revealed some very red faces in the capital this week.

Forward Pass—To Mike DiSalle: Now that some meat prices have been reluctantly pegged for public welfare, watch out for political knifing. Cotton lobbyists, previously angered by price ceilings, are pooling resources with beef-raisers and meat-packers to take the teeth out of your rules. If they can pressure members of congress to cut the OPS budget—you won't have salaries for the staff required to enforce either cotton or meat ceilings.

Here and There—Esther Williams, who never wears a bonnet in films, zips around town in the daintiest toppers. . . When Jackie Gleason gandered Esther dining in Armando's cafe the other eve, he added: "he could make any dive look good." . . . Harry Nason, the big-time editor who just finished the 1½-year health course at Lake Saranac, doesn't want any part of the Metropolis any more. Signed up as managing editor of an Adirondack weekly. . . . Nancy Gates, one of the cuties of Paramount's Golden Circle of a dozen promising movie youngsters who American Airlined into town this week got a double kick out of the flight. Her AA-pilot husband was at the controls.

Hearing Aid—Paul Steiner asked me to dip into his new volume, "Israel Laughs," for lighter moments from a far-off land now marking its third anniversary with Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion's visit to U. S. One favorite from Paul's chuckle- book concerned an official reception at which two officers of Israel's army were being introduced. "This is Col. Shulamith, formerly Edelstein. May I present Maj. Hadera, formerly Koussovsky." The major smiled. "What Israel needs," he proposed, "is a book titled 'Who Was Who.'"

Fair Trade—When Nicky Quattrocicchi, author-proprietor of El Borracho cafe decided to fly to Sicily for his sister's engagement—Armando, who owns the rival nightclub across the street, decided that was the time to visit his family in Italy. . . . Dr. George S. M. Cowan, a sharpshooting physician, was wined, dined and awarded the annual Horse's Tail trophy at the 71st regiment's dinner—for placing 17th in last week's rifle matches at West Point. . . . Alvin Adams, ace aviation consultant, marries Shirley Ward of Kansas City next month, but the couple already passed their first crossroads. He planned two honeymoons, one to outh America, another to his am's Horn dude ranch in Wyoming. They had to toss a coin for which compass direction first.

Headless Horseman — Robert Young is convinced that the auto is an actor's best friend. As a horseman he is Hollywood's worst collapse. When he invested $1800 in a riding club with Allan Jones, he presumed the least he'd get back was free rides. But movie stars ignored bills, bankrupted the stable and cost Young about $200 an hour for his "free" gallops.

Setting-Up Exercise — Col. Homer Litzenberg, on leave in New York, tells me he called for a jeep volunteer to decoy the enemy into revealing its gun positions along the opposite side of a Korean river, during the 7th Marines' battle out of the Chosen Reservoir deathtrap. Discovered his own jeep was the only one operatable. So his driver, Cpl. Bob Koskowski of Minneapolis, got the unenviable job of make-believe scouting for a shallow place to ford. When Commies hit for Litzenberg's bait and opened fire to intercept this jeep patrol, ammo-short Leathernecks pinpointed targets, then shot the enemy off the other bank before crossing to renew theattack.

Round Trip—Paramount wants Comic Jack Carter for Betty Hutton's leading man, in a film based on the romance of Benny Fields and Blossom Seeley. By coincidence another studio has revived from mothballs "The Minstrel Man," which was adapted from anoter episode in Benny's life. In this oldie the identity of Fields was masked by a nom de plume, oddly enough, Jack Carter.

MacKenzie's Column

(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst)

There has been considerable opposition by Britain, Norway and Denmark to America's proposal to include Greece and Turkey in the north Atlantic treaty organization—but this opposition seems to be subsiding.

Whether it will subside to the point of full agreement—actual inclusion of the two countries in the formal pact—is an open question. That something will be done to bring them into the partnership of western defense arrangements does seem most likely.

The United States itself originally was opposed to inclusion of these near east states, but changed her mind. This change was signaled about two months ago. That was when General Eisenhower told the U. S. foreign relations committee, just before he went abroad to assume his north Atlantic command, that he would like to see Turkey, Greece, Spain and Yugoslavia brought into the set-up. He pointed out that this would give the Atlantic pact countries a really strong right flank instead of a weak one.

Tukey and Greece of course would be vital positions at the eastern end of this flank.

Both these countries had desired to be included but some members of the pact—notably Britain—did not wish to complicate the organization by stretching it that far. While they would be glad to have bases in Greece and Turkey, they didn't want to pledge reciprocal defense of the two in event of aggression. And naturally the Greeks and Turks wanted protection.

Washington's main consideration in changing its mind, as I understand it, revolved about two points:

1. The psychological aspect that making Turkey and Greece members of the pact would give them a needed feeling of security and consequently would increase the bonds of amity with the western powers.

2. The more practical consideration that Uncle Sam needs bases in that part of the world, and that this necessarily involves a two way treaty under which Greece and Turkey would receive reciprocal protection.

Well, it's easy to understand the feelings of the Greeks and Turks, sitting as they do almost under the muzzles of Russia's big guns. They have plenty of courage, but it takes more than that to stand up against a Moscow which is backed not only by Russian might but can order out the armed forces of the Soviet's Balkan satellites.

The way it looks from here it will be a good bargain if the western powers bring Greece and Turkey into the Atlantic pact. Or, if that fails, to make some other arrangement which will make their relations with the United States more like those of actual pact members. Both these nations of course have been famous through the centuries for their fighting men.

Maj. Gen Reuben E. Jenkins, until recently head of the U. S. mission in Greece, said the other day that Greece has "the best-trained army, man for man, unit for unit, in western Europe." He added that there are nearly 500,000 trained men ready for immediate service, and he figured that the army would give an invading force "a heluva bloody nose, regardless of the invader's strength."

As for the famous fighting Turks, they would be a tower of strength, once the army was reorganized and adquately equipped. Experts estimate that a rehabilitated Turkish army could immobilize a substantial part of Russia's forces—a tremendous asset to the west in event of another major conflict. This presents such a powerful argument for the inclusion of Greece and Turkey in defense arrangements that observers look for at least a modification of the objections.

Roundtable

MARSHALL VS. MACARTHUR

Following Secretary Marshall's testimony, a plurality of editors favors continuation now of the administration policy of trying to win a satisfactory settlement through military action limited to Korea. But a very large minority continues to approve General MacArthur's ideas for more direct action against Red China, as offering more hope of success with no more ultimate danger of precipitating a general world war. A smaller minority favors progressive use of such of MacArthur's ideas as may be necessary to win a military victory in Korea; and many editors in the minority group believe now that this will happen.

Pittsburgh (Pa.) Post - Gazette (Ind.): "General MacArthur's proposals for ending the war in Korea were based on two very dangerous conclusions: (1) that we would not necessarily become involved in World War III if we attacked Red China, and 2) that if our Allies did not approve of that course, we should 'go it alone.' As both Secretary Marshall and President Truman pointed out, we simply dare not risk an all-out war which we are unprepared to fight. . . . Nor can we afford to 'go it alone.' . . . What we are doing, said Marshall, is buying time in Asia while the free nations prepare to defend western Europe."

Washington (D. C.) Times-Herald (Ind.-Rep.): "Mr. Truman fears the Russians but does not understand them. . . . They will attack when they like the odds an not before. . . . Mr. Truman argues that we must do nothing now which would alienate our Allies . . . The argument makes no sense. Our Allies need us much more than we need them. The Russians can overrun Europe whenever they feel like it and have refreained from doing so only from fear of American retaliation. . . . Mr. Truman doesn't offer anything beyond the hope that the Chinese will grow weary and the other Russian satellites wiill rebel against the Kremlin."

Des Moines (Iowa) Register (Ind.-Rep.): "The coalition of China and Russia, insofar as one exists, could fall apart. . . . If we were to force a clearcut decision before the world on the validity of the Sino-Soviet treaty of alliance, we might compel Russia to enter the fight in full strength, merely to reassure her satellites in Europe. If we cut loose with all-out war against 'Communism' in Asia, we might convince Moscow that the die is cast, and that the prestige of Communism everywhere was finally at stake, even though Russia had no real wish to precipitate a world war."

Indianapolis (Ind.) Star (Ind.-Rep.). "General Marshall would not or could not assure the people that Russia would not 'assist' the Chinese Reds whether we fought a stalemate war or whether we fought an 'all-out' war as MacArthur proposed. . . . The only real difference between General MacArthur and General Marshall seems to be that one wants to try to win victory quickly by using all our power while the other wants to win by gaining a draw. . . . The risk of World War III seems to be equally great in either case, for the purpose of Russian intervention could only be to try to forces into victory."

Hartford (Conn.) Courant (Rep.) "Secretary Marshall painted in . . details of why what General MacArthur wants, open and effective warfare on Red China, is less likely to bring victory in Korea than bring on World War III. Marshall reminded us that in Greece we won out in the end by limited action, without bombing the Communist sanctuary in the Balkans. Finally he reminded us that, by choosing the Berlin airlift rather than the risk of open warfare, we triumphed in Germany as well."

San Diego (Calif.) Union (Rep.): "Secretary Marshall admits that he and President Truman last December approved a plan for the 'hot pursuit' of Communist planes into Manchuria as a reprisal against the attacks of these planes on our forces. But, he naively confesses, our 13 supposed United Nations 'allies' in Korea 'solidly voted against it.' He also testified that he and the president are now prepared to discuss with these 'allies' a military blockade of China. . . . Marshall thus testifies, in effect, to the merits of these very proposals as advanced by General MacArthur."

Denver (Colo.) Post (Ind.): "Because of this debate, the war effort in Korea will be carried out more strongly; that seems certain. . . . The editors of this newspaper believe the debate is going to accomplish the ends most Americans want—to make the United Nations forces fight a war to win in Korea. Because the matter is being debated, The Post does not believe we will lose our Allies, as we might have had we taken hasty unilateral action. We believe most of General MacArthur's ideas will be carried out, but with the restraint and U. N. support awaited by the administration."

Notebook

South Bend, Ind.—(AP)— The mighty American midwest never looked better than it does today.

This heartland of the United States is particularly lovely now to one visiting it from New York.

A big city is at its glittery best in the winter. It is bright and alive when the land that feeds it is dull and dour in an icicle hibernation. But the countryside sells itself in the lush warmth that comes as spring blends into summer.

You ride across the big wide midwest now and the colors of earth and sky and bird assail your senses with almost a painful violence.

Was there ever a better time to be alive since the seas withdrew and a hot gun shone down on the steaming earth and told the trees to grow? Was this world ever fairer to see that it is right now?

Maybe it looked fresher and finer to the dinosaur or the mastodon, when the universe was younger. But the dinosaurs are fossils, and summer keeps right on coming forever, and a man has to buy life in his own time. And now is the time to buy life.

Everything in the midwest these May days looks as new and polished as if the hills and fields and town were on dress parade, waiting for the Lord to drop by and inspect it.

So peaceful . . . so green . . . so lasting-seeming . . . as happy-looking as a young girl coming home from church.

Old folks, whose only goal was to outlive the winter thaw their bones in front porch rockers and think "Well durned if I intend to give up and die on as nice a day as this."

Colts frolic in the pasture and wonder why their placid mothers would rather nuzzle the ground than outrace the wind as it makes breeze ripples across the grass. Robins are feathered millionaires. They plop heavily after plows churning up the black soil and ponder, "Shall I snap up that worm—or is it fat enough to bother with?"

A richness and excitement in the simple joy of being alive thrills everything. Fruit trees dowered in white pause on a hill slope like little girls peeping out of their gauzy veils for a group portrait after their first communion. The farmwife hangs gay new curtains in her windows. Three ducks dispute the barnyard authority of a bossy rooster and quack, "Go lay an egg."

Everything is busy and more contented—insects and men, cows and 'possums. Everything is planting or building or nesting or painting or dreaming or courting.

In the cities the young couples linger longer together over late date sandwiches in the corner cafe. And they walk the long way home. Joe, the jeweler, puts a big display of diamond engagement rings in his window.

At night the trains roar by in a shower of sparks and crying "whooo-whooo-whooo." But it isn't a lonesome sound at all, not this time of year.

Somewhere else in the world there are battles and famines and epidemics and people plotting over who's to be king. But in the American midwest right now it's growing time, the season of reaching out for something better.

This time . . . this season . . . these very days . . . millions of midwest people will remember for giving them the most wonderful moments of their lives. Peace is so close at heart you forget the war.

John Wilkes Booth was shot to death by Sgt. Boston Corbett near Fredericksburg, Va., in 865.

COOKING

Cooking is an art that is slowly coming into its own in this country. We are waking up to the great contribution cooking, good cooking, makes to the health and happiness of a home. The smell of a loaf of whole wheat bread coming out of the oven will draw a boy, and a girl, toward home and mother with a stronger pull and a firmer hold than a piece of store cake can exert.

Of course, it is much more work to make a loaf of bread than to buy one at the shop but oh, the difference it made to me! String beans, bush beans, snap beans (they will come by any name you call them) are not the most attractive vegetable on the list but when they are made into a souffle they are something else, something delectable.

Naturally, that takes more time than opening a can and dumping the contents into the pot with a dab of butter, but the souffle will bring smiles, a sudden warmth will envelop the circle about the table that is not present when the canned and dumped dish appears. Canned food is only the basis of the dish that satisfies, only the rudiments of a culinary performance. Something must be done with it and to it to get the full value out of it.

Nourishment is not only physical An important part of it is in the mental attitude food invokes. Why are tomatoes colored like rubies? Why was parsley dipped in emerald green and so softly crisped and curled? Why do you think carrots are golden and peas gray-green and like jade beads? And why has each one of them a delectable taste of its own? Because eyes, nose, taste, must waken the mind to enjoy the sight, taste and smell of them before the stomach will accept them cheerfully and set to work on them.

Vegetables and fruit are first beautiful things that nourish the souls of men, after that they are solid food that nourishes the body. Soul and body cannot be separated. Both must be nourished by the food that is placed before them. Vegetables need not be prosy. They can be poetry in the hands of an understanding cook and poetry is the language of the spirit.

Boys and girls love to cook when given the chance to get at the stove and allowed to use the cook book and the materials. They will learn to cook as easily as they learn to read if they are allowed to try. But they should be taught the true values of the art, the spiritual contribution it makes to home and family.

Every child should have his own library of good books. Good books stimulate thinking and building good characters. Dr. Patri has made a list of more than 50 good books for children in his leaflet P-8, "A Book List." To obtain a copy send 10 cents in coin to him, care of this paper, P. O. # CLASSROOM HAS ANNUAL VOTING

Re-Elects Mrs. Zoll As President; Panel Discussion Held

The Ouachita Classroom Teachers, meeting Monday night, were entertained and instructed with a panel discussion. Mrs. Katie Mae Zoll, president, presided. During a business session officers as follows were named: Mrs. Katie Mae Zall, president; Mrs. Joe Coleman, vice-president; Miss Billy Blazier, treasurer; Miss Dorothy Ann Mitchell, secretary. Fifty district representative, Ola Mae Pennington.

In the panel discussion, with Red Stricklin, leader of the participants, the subject given for debate was "What Can We Do to Improve the Moral Fibre of our Nation?" He discussed press accounts that indicated that the moral tine of the nation is weakening.

The second speaker was Mrs. Elizabeth Bonnette, of Linwil school, who was followed by Mrs. G. B. Wilson, Selman elementary school teacher, who urged the Golden Rule and Ten Commandments as a basis for worthwhile living

The fourth and last speaker was Miss Ola Mae Pennington who urged that education be broadened out to include a higher and more Christian way of living, quoting from a number of authorities in her contention. And she said that the school can help promote the moral fibre of the nation by its cooperation or participation in the broader life of the community and that indeed the school needs partners in raising the moral fibre of the nation, through the development of moral values in the lives of the youth of today.

Salesman Shot By Dissatisfied Buyer

New Orleans, May 19. —(AP)— A dissatisfied buyer who plastered his automobile with signs reading "This car is a lemon" was charged today with shooting an auto salesman in the back.

Police Capt. Archibald Lemmie said Cosimo Rosso was accused of attempted murder in the wounding of salesman Elmer Bahan, 38.

The shooting occurred last night after Rosso had driven his car several times around the agency selling the same make car.

Included among the signs on Rosso's car were copies of complanning letters he had written the manufacturer.

The policeman quoted Rosso as saying Bahan had stopped and threatened him. He claimed, said the officer, that he decided to show Bahan a gun to scare him.

Rosso maintained that he shot Bahan accidentally as the latter walked away, Lemmle reported, and bemoaned that "I shot him in the back. That's the most awful, awful thing that could happen."

THRILLS, SPILLS, EXCITE MENT AT JUNIOR RODEO

Police Charge Driver With Carrying Weapon

Two Monroe police officers patrolling the city early Saturdlay morning investigated a stalled car in the 2700 block of DeSiard street and placed the owner of the vehicle in the city jail for carrying a concealed weapon and being drunk and disorderly.

C. T. Eubanks, of Potosi, Miss., is being held under a $215 bond after he pulled a loaded, 32 - 20 colt pistol from his shirt and tried to place it under the seat of the car, officers said

The car was placed under suspicion by the officers when they spotted the vehicle with a woman slumped over the wheel. Investigation showed that the woman companion of Eubanks' had met him at the White Way club, and that she didn't know how they got to the 2700 block of DeSiard. Mrs. Leon Powell of Oak Grove was the companion.

Officers found two half pints of whiskey on Eubanks.

2nd Annual Junior Rodeo Scheduled For May 25, 26

The wild and wolly, rip-roaring West was, they say, the place where you couldn't send a boy to do a man's job.

Just to prove the old assumption wrong (and, incidentally, to make a little money for their clubwork), members of the Ouachita Parish High School chapter, Future Farmers of America, have scheduled the second annual Junior Rodeo for May 25 and 26 at Gentry's Arena.

None of the authentic touches of the most authentic rodeos, with the exception of grizzled moustaches and grey hairs on the contestants, will be missing.

Included in the day's program ar the usual ordeals . . . bull riding, calf riding, a calf scramble, bareback riding, and every other device to uphold the claim that western men are men, and just as good as any lil ol' dogie.

The contestants will all be high school students the older folks, probably because they're considered a bit too fragile, will be relegated to the grandstands.

Miss Betty Williams has been named queen of the blood-and-buckaroo exhibition, and will preside over the organized mayhem.

A new event, the wild horse race, will be high on the list of exciting events. There are three boys and one wild horse to a team . . . . combination that should contribute enough excitement and thrills for even the most hardened rodeo-goer.

Admission to the rodeo each of the two nights has been set at one dollar for adults and 50 cents for students.

Boy, 17, Is Burned Seriously In Prank

Detroit, May 19. —(AP)— Turned into a human torch as a prank backfired at a high school aviation club's initiation, a 17-year-old boy lay seriously burned tonight at a hospital here.

The boy, Douglas Brisbee, was set aflame last night when a spark from a magneto-powered shocking device ignited a shellac - type, aluminum - colored paint with which his chest had been smeared.

Two instructors, one of whom touched a magneto-charged wire to the blindfoided boy to "tickle" him, smothered the flames with their bodies, but his upper torso was seared.

The instructors, Arthur Elges and Carl H. Turnquist, escaped with minor burns. They told investigating police the same prank had been used by the aero club at Cass Technical high school for 20 years without mishap. Three had preceded Douglas last night and 16 others awaited their turn.

"It was just an accident and nobody should be blamed," Douglas said at a hospital.

12TH PRESIDENT TO BE HONORED

Tablet To Be Unveiled; Clyde Pohl To Be Master Of Ceremonies

A bronze plaque memorializing Zachary Taylor, twelfth president of the United States, placed on the state capitol grounds at Baton Rouge by Woodmen of the World camps of Louisiana, will be dedicated in ceremonies Sunday afternoo , May 27.

A great grandson of President Taylor is expected to be present to unveil the plaque when it is presented by W. C. Braden, national Woodmen secretary and a former resident of Lake Charles, in behalf of Louisiana Woodmen. Lt. Governor W. J. Dodd will be principal speaker.

Governor Earl K. Long will accept the marker on behalf of the state; Mayor Powers Higginbotham, for the city, and Edward A. Parsons, ppesident, for the Louisiana Historical Society. Clyde Pohl, of Monroe, head consul of Louisiana Woodmen, has been asked to preside.

This is the twenty-seventh marker memorializing historic sites and great Americans to be placed by the Woodmen Society as part of its fraternity in action program of fraternal and civic service. It is placed on the capitol grounds because Zachary Taylor lived nearby for a number of years.

Woodmen camps of Nebraska dedicated a similar historic marker on the Peru State Teachers College campus, May 25, marking it as the oldest college in the state and third oldest school of its kind west of the Missouri river.

While the dedicatory ceremony at Baton Rouge is being held, the Woodmen camp of Council Bluffs, Ia., will be presenting a plaque, placed on the city hall, commemorating the late General Grenville M. Dodge, noted engineer and builder of the Union Pacific, Texas Pacific and Cuban railroads and a former Iowa congressman.

Pair Of Wood Ducks Walk In Ohio Home

Washington Court House, O., May 19. —(AP)— A rustling noise came from the chimney in Mrs C. R. Shoemaker's house. Then a scraping, and a furious flapping.

A duck walked into Mrs. Shoemaker's living room.

Later in the day, a second webfooter peered out the chimney grate, then strolled into the room.

Fish and game conservation official Irvin J. Patrick cleared up the mystery. The two visitors were wood ducks, he said, a species native to Ohio. They nest in hollow trees and probably had mistaken Mrs. Shoemaker's chminey for just that.

KI-RO-LI CAMP OPENS SHORTLY

June 10 Date Set For Year's First Encampment; Owens Camp Director

Camping is the highlight of the summer season for any Boy Scout. When school is out, his first thought usually concerns the adventure of camping with his fellow Scouts. In northeast Louisiana that means Camp Ki-Ro-Li, the Ouachita Valley Council's camp.

Scouts will attend the camp with their own troop and carry out all camp activities under the direction of their own scoutmaster. The central camp staff will lend supervision to all the activities.

Camp Ki-Ro-Li was first established in 1925 and has provided excellent camping facilities for thousands of boys since that time. This camp season is expected to be the largest in the camp's history. An exellent camp staff has been recruited and trained, and several new special activities are to be added to the program.

Raymon L. Owens, field Sout executive from Ruston, La., is to serve as camp director. He will be assisted by Gerald B. Harrigill, field Scout executive of Rayville, La., Leon Pratt, Bastrop, and William Earl Nolan of Oak Ridge Pratt is to serve as activities director and Nolan as aquatic director. All of these men have had special training at the National Boy Scout camp school.

Included on the program this year will be swimming, lifesaving, boating, fishing, fly casting, handicraft, nature, archery, riflery, skeet shooting, campfire, pioneering, amp craft, advanement, and many other interesting features.

Scouts are encouraged to come to Camp Ki-Ro-Li in their own troop. Each week the camp will open on Sunday afternoon and campers will leave the following Saturday afternoon. Information on the camp program has been sent to all Scoutmasters in the Ouachita Valley Council with a special camp notice for all Scouts and parents. Scoutmasters have been requested to mail in reservations as early as possible to be insured of the camp period that it desires.

Walter Winchell

soldiers are battling. The bluest skies are highways for death-dealing bombers. Rain means mud—not nourishment for flowers. And the warmth of sunny days only intensifies the weariness of marching men. . .However, there is a link between the agony of war and the solace of the balmy season. The scars of the bloodiest battleields are inevitably covered with grass.

Many poets have made Spring the gay brainchild of their imaginations. They have dressed it with colorful images and nourished it with romanticism. They have isolated its charms and glorified its beauties. They view it as a series of pretty pictures unrelated to history or any personality except their own. But the truth is that Spring reaches far beyond the horizon of a vivid landscape.

No tryant should underestimate the surge of hope that comes with Spring. And no cynic should be blind to the strength of that emotion. It is real and effective. . . . This yearning is indestructible because it is rooted in the relentless progress of nature. . .Armies can conquer territory, but the earth belongs to nature. . .This innate yearning, this hope, this longing for peace and dignity and beauty defies the power of despots. It has a billion faces and speaks a hundred tongues. Without it mankind would have gone the way of the dodo a long time ago. It is the essence of life—the faith that distinguishes humanity from beasts. And Spring always fulfills the promise to renew it.

You can write this simple truth in letters of fire across the skies: Empires will rise and fall as they have done in the past. But after the thunder of guns and bombs is stilled--humanity will be beguiled by the lilting song of a bird.

WORKERS VOTE TO SEEK PAY BOOST

Packinghouse Workers Get Government Approval For 9-Cent Hourly Increase

Chicago, May 19.—(AP)—The C. I. O. Packinghouse Workers, who got government approval yesterday for a nine-cents hourly pay boost, today voted to seek a general wage increase in August.

A spokesman said the action had nothing to do with yesterday's approval voted by the wage stabilization board.

But delegates to the C. I. O. union's wage and contract conference said the W. S. B. had created "serious administrative problems" for the meat packing industry.

They said these were created by limiting the nine-cent increase only to employes of the four major companies instead of extending it to the entire industry. They added that agreements negotiated with in dependent packers were referred to the W. S. B. staff for further consideration.

A union spokesman said the Packinghouse Workers Union has 80,000 members employed by the four major companies and another 35,000 employed by independent packers.

He said employes of the independents were "pretty mad."

The union spokesman said its

The survey will be conducted under the general supervision of George Burleson, formerly agricultural agent in Tensas parish, new program analyst on the state staff of the agricultural extension service.

Mr. Thames and Miss Tappan point out that those who will make the survey are well known in this part of the state and are acquainted with many people in Madison and with agriculture in the parish. The district agents add that the information gathered will be for the benefit of extension and of all farm people and that as usual in such studies all information will be confidential and no individual will be identified when the results are compiled.

MONROE BLASTS GREENVILLE BUCKS, 11 TO 1

14-HIT SUPPORT ENABLES WHITE TO GET 5TH WIN

Second Game Of Series Slated Here This Afternoon At Legion Park

Getting fourteen - hit support from the Sports, Claude White hurled his fifth Cotton States League triumph with comparative ease here last night as Monroe defeated the Greenville Bucks, 11 to 1, in the first game of the season here with the Mississippi club. The two teams bring their brief two-game series to a close here this afternoon at 3 o'clock at Legion Memorial Stadium. Monroe goes to El Dorado tomorrow.

Although White gave up eight hits, he kept the Buck blows fairly well scattered while his mates gave him good support in nipping potential Greenville rallies three times when the Bucks loaded the bases.

Greenville used three hurlers, Charles Kelsey, Ted Gebhardt, and Harry Rowland in their efforts to halt the Sports' scoring parade, but enough Monroe runs were scored off each pitcher to win the game. Kelsey was charged with the loss.

R. W. Bruce and Bob Hamric led the hitting for the Men of Mazur, each three hits in four times at bat. They also scored three runs apiece, while Hamric was credited with four runs batted in. Carl Tucker, who walked twice and singled once, also scored three times, and Bobby Greene added three runs batted in with a pair of singles.

The Sports' biggest blow was a two-run triple by John Paul Jones that capped Monroe scoring for the night in the seventh inning.

Two were out in the third inning when the Sports got their scoring parade underway with three runs on three hits and a pair of free passes. After Virgil Bivens and White had gone down, Carl Tucker punched out the first hit off Greenville pitching. R. W. Bruce scored him with a double. Bob Hamric and Johnny Jones walked loading the bases. Bobby Greene singled to score Bruce and Hamric.

The Sports added two more in the fourth. Bivens singled. Tucker walked, and Bruce was hit by a pitched ball to load the sacks. Hamric drove Bivens and Tucker home with a single that finished Kelsey. Gebhardt came in to pitch for the Bucks, retiring the side with no more damage.

But Gebhardt was chased in a four - run uprising by the Sports in the sixth. White led with a single. Tucker walked. Bruce loaded the bases with a single. Hamric singled White and Tucker home. Jones flied out to right field, but Greene drove Bruce in with a single that finished Gebhardt. Rowland then took over on the mound for the Bucks. George Andrews greeted Rowland with a single that scored Hamric. A double play spoiled more scoring for the Sports in the inning.

Two were out in the seventh when the Sports added runs Nos. 10 and 11. Bruce and Hamric were on with singles when Jones drove them home with a tremendous triple against the right center field fence.

The Bucks broke into the scoring the eighth. Wally Buerger beat out an infield hit and went on to second on Tucker's overthrow at first. Buerger went to third after the catch on Roger Payne's outfield fly and came home on a single by Gene Cork.

SPORTSPURTS: The two-game sweep of the El Dorado series marked the tenth series the Sports have captured this year. They split the other four, all with Natchez. It was their seventh set in a row from which they've emerged victorious. The banner crowd Friday night boosted the season's toal to 15,155, just 271 under the aggregate at the same time in 1950. Knothole Gangers students at Louisiana Training Institute and assorted deadheads, boosted the grand total at Friday night's gathering to 2,669. Word from West Monroe's Ed Head who manages Lancaster of the Inter-State League is that the former no-hit ace of he Dodgers has his Red Roses in first place. On another diamond front, at aBton Rouge, Billy Gimler of Monroe is a regular outfielder for the Evangeline League Capital City club. Lefty Craig Whetstone, while not charged with a defeat or credited with a victory, is held in high regard by Manager Benny Warren of the Ardmore club of the Sooner State League. The lithe southpaw, who lives in Monroe and is on option from the Sports, has been having control trouble but Warren, who used to catch for the Phillies, has high hopes for the former Neville High star. Walter Veach, who had been handling the public address duties at Legion Stadium, has gone to Pennsylvania on business and his spot before the microphone has been taken by Garland Moore. Bob Hamric is continuing his mighty clouting. Through Friday, he had blasted 13 hits in his last 23 times at bat for an unbelievable .570 average, driving in six runs and scoring five. Incidentally, Hamric ran a bowling alley in Del Rio, Tex. last winter. His slugging outburst raised his seasonal mark from a lowly .225 to his present .309.

Jackie McLeod, 20 - year - old star with the New York Rangers in the National Hockey League, was the victim of polio as a youngster.

Kallio Promotes Match To Settle Fuss Over Ownership Of Belt

A championship wrestling squabble that left both Rex Mobley and 'Buff" Serois claiming the world's light heavyweight crown has its sequel here Tuesday night when Promoter Gus Kallio pits the two mat rivals in the main event at his Walnut street arena. The crown will be high stakes.

"I want no part of their fuss that developed in Shreveport last week," Promoter Kallio said last night. 'I know both are claiming the title, but to me it'll be the match here Tuesday that decides the issue. I don't care which one comes here wit' the belt just as long as I'm able to promote a title tussle."

According to reports on the Shreveport match last week, Mobley got the best of Champion Serios, the Buffalo, N.Y., toughie, but the referee had been thrown out of the ring and missed the play. When the referee got back into action he awarded the verdict to the defending titlist. The Shreveport commissioner, a witness, was said to have reversed the referee with the explanation that the referee "couldn't see what was going on at the finish" and awarded the belt to Mobley.

Mobley, a Texan who formerly held the crown several times before Serois won it for the first time from Jack Curtis, declares he has the belt in his possession to prove he'll be the defending champion and not Serios when the two meet here Tuesday.

Before Mobley and Serois get together to settle their feud Kallio will present Al Getz and George Cologne in his semi-final attraction opening the night's performance at 8:15 o'clock.

Getz, a durable ring veteran, will be meeting quite a toughie in Cologne, a Louisiana boy from New Orleans, and Promoter Kallio said if they come through with a top-notch performance that a title match might be on the fire for the winner.

Bill Barney will referee both matches.

Tickets may be obtained on advanced sale at Kallio's Arena up until 7 p.m. Tuesday when the doors open for the night's show. Reserved seats are going for $1.50 ach. General admission is $1 and children under 12 years of age get in for 50 cents.

Philadelphia, in 1874, established the first public zoo in the United States, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Sterlington's battery was Fuller and McDougal, but much of the credit went to the batting lineup last night as Ed Lee, Puckett and McDougal hit triples and Buster Parker clouted a homerun.

West Monroe used Coaker and Lee on the mound with Wilson catching in scoring the one-sided win over Ridge Avenue.

MRS. MILLER TO DEFEND STATE GOLF TITLE

8 BAYOU DESIARD WOMEN ENTERING MEET THIS WEEK

Qualifying Will Begin Tomorrow At Shreveport Country Club

Mrs. George Miller, Monroe's defending Louisiana state amateur golf champion, and seven other members of Bayou DeSiard Golf and Country Club here are off for Shreveport today to participate in the annual state championship tournament for women. Qualifying starts tomorrow wih match play beginning Tuesday and the finals set for Friday over the Shreveport Country Club layout.

Mrs. Miller, the former Miss Elizabeth Kennedy, became the first Monroe golfer to win the women's state amatuer last April when she defeated Mrs. E. J. Mittelbronn, New Orleans, 3 and 2, in 33 holes of the scheduled 36 - hole final test at Baton Rouge.

Bayou DeSiard club members extended Mrs. Miller t. ii sincere hopes for a repeat performance this year at a get - together the past week.

Also competing from Monroe will be Mrs. Walter Kellogg, first flight winner at Baton Rouge last year, and Miss Ellen Kent Millsaps, Mrs. George Beekman, Mrs. Guy Campbell, Mrs. Clyde Nash, Miss Ruby Monzingo, and Mrs. Aileen Guthrie.

Although the state championship last year came as Mrs. Miller's first big triumph, she has long been recognized locally for her athletic ability. She claimed district and state tennis championships for the Monroe City High School a few years back, and then began taking golf instructions from Winnie Cole, the present Bayou DeSiare pro who was then professional at the Municipal Golf Club here.

Cole is the only instructor Mrs. Miller ever had, and when Winnie went to the old Lakeside Country Club here in the middle thirites, Mrs. Miller moved in to win the club championship for women for two years straight. When Cole left Monroe for a position at Vicksburg, Miss., and the old Lakeside was discontinued, women's golf went into a decline here.

Since Cole's return to the new Bayou DeSiard C. C., and Mrs. Miller's accension to the state throne, women's golf is on the rebound and 36 members of the fairer sex turned out for the Wednesday's ladies' day special at the bayou club.

Mrs. Miller at the present holds the Bayou DeSiard course record for women with a 36 for nine holes and a 76 for the full distance, four over men's par.

Mrs. Kellogg, the former Miss Suzanne Sperry, has also been improving her golf greatly and is expected to be among the top qualifiers at the state again. Mrs. Nash has also been one of the steadiest players with lots of improvement and coming along strong.

RED HOSE HAND FELLER DEFEAT

Homers By Dom DiMaggio, Moss Spark Bosox Indians, 9 To 4

Boston, May 19.—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox subjected four-game winner Bob Feller to his initial 1951 setback by scalping the Cleveland Indians, 9-4, today to sweep a two-game series.

Feller was charged with all but one of the Red Sox' 14 hits, including homers by Dom DiMaggio and newly acquired Catcher Les Moss, before being relieved by Lou Brissie. It was Cleveland's fifth straight defeat.

A triple by Johnny Pesky, which drove in two runners and boosted the Red Sox into a 7-4 lead, blasted Feller from the mound with one out in the seventh.

Feller opened in wobbly fashion by spotting the Red Sox a 4-0 lead after the second inning. In that frame Moss, who joined the Red Sox yesterday, homered and Tom Wright singled with the bases loaded.

Feller then regained his usual form and was back on even terms when Al Rosen provided all of the Cleveland runs with a grand-slam homer off starter Mel Parnell in the fourth inning.

After Sam Chapman singled and Bob Kennedy doubled with one out, Parnell was replaced by Harry Taylor ;that relief flinger quelled the Indians' only uprising by purposely passing Jim Hegan to fill the bases and then forcing Feler to ground into a doube pay.

DiMaggio's four-bagger moved the Red Sox ahead again by a 5-4 margin and in the seventh, Ted Wiliams scored Pesky with a fly to deep right field.

Brissie gave Walt Dropo a single and passed Bobby Doerr before giving way to Steve Gromek in the eighth. Moss then advanced both runners with a neat sacrifice and Dropo registered the final Boston counter on Taylor's fly to right.

BOLD WINS 75TH PREAKNESS RACE

Arcaro Rides 4th Winner In Maryland Classic; Counterpoint Second

Baltimore, May 19.—(AP)—Bold, a flying Virginia colt from the Brookmeade stable, ran away from seven rivals today to win the $110,245 Preakness Stakes at Pimlico and gave Jockey Eddie Arcaro his fourth victory in the Maryland turf classic.

Master Eddie now has ridden more Preakness winners than any other jockey.

His mount, the brown son of By Jiminy-Little Rebel, wore a one-eyed blinker over his right eye to keep him from drifting to the outside fence. He boomed down the stretch with a flash to whip C. V. Whitney's Counterpoint by seven big lengths at the wire.

Bold's time for the mile and three sixteenths was a snappy 1:56 2-5, just 2-5 off Capot's Preakness and track record.

Counterpoint, at 25-to-one, the longshot in the field for this 75th diamond jubilee Preakness, finished three quarters of a length ahead of the Hampton stable's Alerted.

Mrs. Wallace Gilroy's Timely Reward was fourth, another four lengths back.

It was a spectacular performance for the Brookmeade colt, owned by Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane of Upperville, La., who captured the Preakness in 1934 with High Quest.

The race smacked Bold into the confused 3-year-old picture, and provided a stiff challenger for the Kentucky Derby winer, Count Turf.

The winner, fourth choice in the close betting, returned $10.20, $6.40, and $4.40, while Counterpoint returned a nice $16.80 and $7.60 to place, with Alerted $4.20 to show.

Nippy Jones, Recalled From Minors, Powers Cardinals Past Dodgers, 6-4

St Louis, May 19. —(AP)— Nippy Jones, recalled from the minors a few days ago, drove in five runs on a pair of doubles and a single today to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 6-4 victory over the league - leading Brooklyn Dodgers.

Jones singled a run home in the first inning, doubled across another in the third and sent three mates scurrying home in the fifth with another two-bagger.

The defeat cut Brooklyn's lead over the runner-up Boston Braves to four percentage points. The victory pushed the Cards from sixth place to fourth in the hot pennant scramble.

CITY SOFTBALL LEAGUE OPENING

Eight Teams In Twin Bills At Barkdull Faulk, Sherrouse Tomorrow

The City softball League, Monroe's major circuit for the softball pastime, swings into action here tomorrow night as a consolidation of the City with the Industrial League. Both circuits were having trouble rounding out full membership until they decided on the merger to perpetuate the oldest of the Twin Cities' softball loops.

Double headers will serve to open the campaign on Barkdull Faulk and Sherrouse diamonds, beginning at 7 o'clock tomorrow.

Southern Bell and Fairbanks tangle in the opener at Barkdull Faulk with Gay Clothing and 3 Way Finance providing the nightcap. At Sherrouse, News-Star and Post Office appear in the first game with Cooperative Dairies and Royal Feed and Seed following at 8 o'clock.

BAYOU BENGALS COP TRACK TITLE

L. S. U. Wins With 47 Points; Three New Records Set For S. E. C.

Birmingham, May 19.—(AP)—Jim Dillon of Auburn, ignoring a leg injury, today shattered the discus record as Louisiana State won the Southeastern Conference track title. Two other records also were smashed.

The giant sophomore left a whirlpool bath where he sought relief from a painful muscle injury to toss the discus 161 feet, 9½ inches.

Louisiana State ran up 7 points for its 14th victory in 19 Southeastern track meets.

Alabama finished second with 39 points and Tennessee third with 33.

Herb Neff of Tennessee, set a new high jump record of six feet, 6½ inches. LeRoy Poucher of Florida, made the second record breaking leap in the pole valut event. Poucher cleared 14 feet, 2⅞ inches.

The old discus mark was 154 feet, 1¾ inches by Millard White of Tulane in 1939. Dillion's fine throw added seven feet, 7¾ inches to the record.

Neff replaces Ronald Knecht of L. S. U. in the record book. Knecht jumped six feet, 5⅞ inches in 1948. Poucher's jump topped Martin Korik's 13 feet, 6⅞ inch pole vault for Tennessee here last spring.

The three record breakings gave a big lift toward placing Southeastern track more in line with national college marks. The old discus and pole vault marks were among the lowest in comparison with national records.

Other team finishes were: fourth, Gerogia Tech, 25½ points; fifth, Auburn, 22 points; sixth, Florida, 18½, seventh, Tulane, 12; eighth, Mississippi State, 10: ninth, Mississippi, nine; ten, Georgia, seven; 11, Kentucky, two. Vanderbilt did not enter.

Georgia Tech's Buddy Fowlkes boosted his total points for college competition to 50 points to take the all - time lead from Billy Brown of L. S. U. Brown scored 43 between 1939 and 1941.

L. S. U. clinched the meet in the 100, 220 and 440 when the Tigers scored 24 points. The Tigers won the mile relay race by 20 yards.

Joe Preston of L. S. U. was the only two - time first place finisher when he ran fastest in the 100 and 220. During the 100 he took a bad spill at the tap and scuffed both knees badly. Less than an hour later he came back to win the 220.

Tamale Upsets Favorite At Waterford Park Track

Chester, W. Va., May 19. —(AP)— Tamale, paying $23 for $2, upset the hot favorite, Solicitor, in the $3,500 Waterford Park Handicap, feature event of opening day at the new Waterford Park track today. Tamale ran the six furlongs in 1:12 2-5. Solicitor was second.

A crowd estimated at 12,000 packed the grandstand and clubhouse as an eight-event program launched the new $2,500,000 racing project.

West Virginia's newest track is in the extreme tip of the state's northern panhandle on the banks of the Ohio river.

MARKETS

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

New York, May 19.— (AP) — Stocks: mixed; price changes narrow. Bonds — irregular; mopac issues strong.

Chicago: wheat—weak; peace rumors. Corn — very weak; peace rumors, good crop planting weather. Oats — weak; down with other cereals. Hogs — nominally steady. Cattle — nominally steady.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, May 19.—(AP)— Prices were narrowly mixed today in a quitely drifting market.

Among the leaders the range spread from about $1.25 lower to around $1 higher, with the execption of one or two wide movers.

The volume of business was restricted to an estimated 700,000 shares for the two-hour session as compared with 650,000 shares a week ago.

Trading started at a fast pace with prices bending a little lower. Within a short time, however, the pace slackened, and prices improved here and there by a few cents. That was enough to brace the sagging look of the list and chance it into a mixed price pattern.

Nickel plate opened off 3 points at 202, but other rail leaders were only a few cents higher or lower.

Police Say Soup Caused Woman To Have Accident

Orlando, Fla., May 19. —(AP)— Cause of accident: bowl of soup.

That's what the police report said. In explanation it added that Amy A. Bachleda, Apopka beautician, said she was driving with a bowl of soup on the seat beside her yesterday.

The soup started to overturn, she reached over to steady it, lost control of the car and it crashed into a tree.

Damage to the car was estimated at $200.

TOM MONK RITES SET FOR SUNDAY

Will Be Held This Afternoon In Mulhearn Chapel; Was Widely Known

The funeral of Thomas (Tom) Hanna Monk, 58, prominent Monroe business man who died after a week's illness Friday night, will be held in the Mulhearn Funeral Home chapel, Sunday at 3 p.m. Rev. Ernest Duncan Holloway, minister of the First Presbyterian Church, will officiate and interment will be in Hasley Cemetery.

Pallbearers will be: Henry Montgomery, James F. Clark, Prentice Clark, Curtis Clark, R. M. Morrison and R. L. Jacobs.

Mr. Monk was member of an old time Ouachita parish family, his parents being the late Richard and Martha Hanna Monk. He had been educated in local schools and had for some years operated the Monroe Storage Battery Co., at the intersection of Louisville avenue and North Third street.

About a year ago he achieved honor from the Willard Battery Company for having been their representative here for 30 years. A largely attended dinner was given him at the time in recognition.

Mr. Monk was a man who was of a naturally friendly nature and made many friends in and out of his business connections.

He was married to Miss Summie Clark, who survives as do three aunts, Mrs. Joe Hanna, Mrs. Bob Hanna and Mrs. Fred Hanna.

He was a veteran of World War I, member of the American Legion, Monroe Lions Club and Chamber of Commerce.

GOV. TO REDUCE BEEF PRICE OCT. 1

New Ceiling Will Require Packers To Buy Cattle 10 Per Cent Cheaper

Chicago, May 19.—(AP)—The government will loop a price lariat around the nation's beef cattle tomorrow in its program to pull back the butcher shop price of beef nearly 10 cents a pound by Oct. 1.

The new price ceiling will require packers to buy cattle at prices averaging 10 per cent below January levels. Housewives are expected to find little, if any, immediate change in their meat costs, however.

Retail ceilings are scheduled to be rolled back four to five cents a pound Aug. 1 with a second four to five cents slash due Oct. 10.

The government says the live cattle price rollback is designed to relieve the squeeze on wholesale and retail beef price ceilings now in effect. Additional cattle price rollbacks of 4 ½ per cent each have been set for Aug 1 and Oct. 1, under the Office of Price Stabilization (OPS) order.

Spokesmen for cattle raisers, however, contend the ceiling on cattle merely transfers the squeeze from the packers to the cattle feeders and will cause a substantial drop in beef production.

Cattle prices have been slanting generally downwards at the 12 principal livestock markets since the government announced its brief price control program April 28 and are near ceiling levels. For that reason the ceiling should cause no sharp new price downswing.

Under the cattle ceiling, packers in Chicago will be permitted to pay the following maximum average prices for accounting periods between May 20-July 29:

Prime grade yielding 62 per cent meat, $37 a hundred pounds; choice yielding 59 per cent, $34.20; good yielding 56 per cent, $31.50; commercial yielding 53 per cent, $27.30; utility yielding 47 per cent, $21.80 and cutter and canner yielding 43 per cent, $19.50.

Comparable ceilings have been set in other livestock centers.

Cattle yielding more than the standard percentage yields specified can bring a corresponding higher price.

Cattle receipts at the nation's 12 principal markets since the beef price control announcement three weeks ago have been about equal to those for the same period in 1950 — slightly over 500,000 head.

Cattle receipts jumped 25 per cent over the preceding week the week ended May 5, and prices broke $1 to $3 a hundred pounds. Receipts dropped somewhat the following week and prices recovered 50 cents to $1. This week receipts increased again and prices held about steady.

Some beef cuts in the New York wholesale market dropped below the ceiling Thursday, because of plentiful supplies.

Opponents of cattle price ceilings have contended that some cattle is being shipped to market at light weight because feeders are afraid to buy cattle for fattening.

Miss Joyce Miller Is Bride Of John Goodson

First Methodist Church Is Scene Of Impressive Double Ring Ceremony

In a ceremony marked by dignity and beauty Miss Joyce Miller, daughter of Mrs. Thomas R .Miller and the late Mr. Miller, was joined in marriage to John Goodson, son of Mrs. Charles L. Goodson, Sr., and the late Mr. Goodson of Shreveport.

The First Methodist Church was the scene of the wedding, solemnized by Dr. A. M. Serex at 5:30 in the afternoon Saturday, May 5, in the presence of friends and relatives. Tall standards of white gladioli were placed against a background of greenery and glowing candles which cast their soft radiance over the altar of the sanctuary as the bride and groom spoke their wedding vows.

While the guests were being ushered to their pews by Mr. Vernon Waldron, Mr. J. Y. Pipes, Jr., and Mr. Joey Heard, a musical background was provided by the organist, Mrs. Everett Zeagler, who played several of the bride's favorite selections. Mr. J. C. Wallace, accompanied by Mrs. Zeagler, sang "Because" and "I Love Thee, Dear."

Attending the bride were Miss Betty Hayes Wilder of Ruston, cousin of the groom and Mrs. Frank Solomon of Vicksburg, cousin of the bride. Both the maid-of-honor and the matron-of-honor wore dresses of aqua net, their hoop skirts over taffeta and their matching stoles forming a soft collar effect at the neckline. Their hats of aqua horsehair braid were trimmed with matching tulle veils which fell gracefully from the brim and with cluster of forget-me-nots tinted to match the American Beauty roses which they carried. A niece of the groom, Ginger Goodson, wearing a replica of the bridesmaids' dresses, walked ahead of the bride, scattering petals from the basket she carried on her arm.

At the sound of the traditional wedding march the bride entered on the arm of her brother, Mr. Thomas R. Miller, who gave her in marriage. She was radiantly lovely in a distinctive creation fashioned of lustrous satin with tight-fitting sleeves coming to a point at the wrists and a scalloped peplum. The full skirt of white net ended in a court train. The veil of three-quarter length was caught to a coronet of pearls and lillies of the valley. In her hands she carried her Prayer Book to which was attached a single white orchid.

The bride's mother was attired in a model of navy sheer with which she wore pink accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Goodson, mother of the groom, chose a becoming gown of heavenly blue and with it she used pink accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Following the plighting of the troth a wedding reception was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Brothers, Sr., at 101 Roselawn, Greeting guests at the door were the host and hostess, the latter wearing a printed sheer and a white corsage, presenting the guests to the receiving line which was formed in the living room. Standing with the bride and groom were the two mothers and the feminine members of the bridal party.

In the reception rooms beautiful arrangements of roses, daisies and calla lilies were used on mantels and tables. The bride's table in the dining room was laid with an imported lace cloth on which were placed six-branched candelabra and silver bowls of bride's roses and baby breath. In the center was the bride's cake, a many-tiered confection of exceptional artistry, with figurines of a bride and groom surmounting it. Mrs. E. N. Jackson served the wedding cake after the bride had cut the first slice. Mrs. James A. Noe served punch from a smaller table which was covered with a handsome cutwork cloth. Encircling the crystal bowl was a heart shaped arrangement of moss roses and baby breath. Dining room courtesies were discharged by Mrs. Tripp Faulk, Jr., Mrs. Pasch Noris, Jr. and Mrs. Alfred Potter. The bride's book in which guests registered their names was presided over by Mrs. Charles Goodson, Jr., sister-in-law of the groom.

Out-of-town guests attending the event were: Mrs. Charles L. Goodson Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Goodson, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Baker, Mrs. Yvonne Evans, Miss Marguerite Lindle, Mr. Arthur Trowbridge, Mr. Vernon Waldron, Mr. Joe Heard and Mr. Wolly W. Stolh of Shreveport; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilder, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Pipes, Jr., of Ruston; Mr. and Mrs. Caldwell Harris, David and Roger Harris, W. C. Harris of Bernice; Mrs. D. E. Caldwell, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Solomon of Vicksburg, Miss.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

One of the nicest Mother's Day events we've heard of was the tea given by the Brownie Scouts of Troop 7 last Sunday in honor of their mothers. Greeting guests at the door were officers of the troop, Natalie Roy, Emmy Brooks, Sharon Peters, Sandra Ponder and her mother, Mrs. C. A. Ponder, in whose home the tea was held. Our executive was flattered by being asked to serve the punch, and reports that she never saw any more gracious hostesses. We hear, too, that a committee of girls washed all the cups afterward, and we think that is just about the nicest part to hear.

To prove that Troop 7 is made up of well-rounded girls, they went on an all day trip to camp Saturday, where they helped clean up the grounds and make ready for next Sunday's open house. Mrs. Sidney Williams and Mrs. W. V. Roy are leaders of this active troop. Oh, yes, each girl has hemmed a dish towel for a gift to be presented to the camp next Sunday.

Brownie Scouts of Troop 12 brought their families in on their last outing, which is quite the proper way for Brownies to do. Mothers and fathers, brothers and sisters gathered at Bernstein Park last Monday evening for a weiner roast and a delicious picnic supper. Mrs. H. S. Sutton and Mrs. Paul Peck are the leaders who helped the girls plan the affair.

Three Brownie Scout troops in uniform appeared on the program at the last P.-T. A. meeting at Lida Benton School. They sang their Brownie Scout songs and gave the promise. On display were dish towels and pot holders which these young girls will give to the new camp—all made by the girls, of course.

So far the news has all concerned Brownies. But intermediates are busy getting ready for the camp open house, too. Mrs. Robert Easterling has visited a number of troops the past week to teach songs that will be used on the program. All intermediates are invited to be a part of the Girl Scout chorus on the program next Sunday. Remember, girls, to come to the Scout office Wednesday afternoon after school to practice once all together.

A nice gesture, we think, was made by Boy Scout Troop 26. They offered to help in some way and were asked to help direct parking and traffic next Sunday. They also will furnish a bugler for the flag ceremony.

We're looking forward to seeing our Scouts, their families and friends, and the civic-minded adults of our community at the camp site next Sunday afternoon at 3:00.

United Spanish War Veteran's Auxiliary Has May Meeting

The May meeting of the United Spanish War Veteran's Auxiliary was held in the home of Mrs. Alma McGee with the new president, Mrs. Mabel Caveness, presiding. The meeting was opened with the members repeating Americanism and giving the pledge to the flag.

Reports from various committees were given and a word of thanks to the committee for the success of the carnation day held recently. This committee was headed by the president with Mrs. Eula Morgan, assistant.

Mrs. Caveness at this time thanked the auxiliary for the honor electing her president, and pledged herself to carry on the work in a successful way.

The hostess then served a delicious salad course and fruit punch to the members and guests present.

Barkdull-Faulk

The library at Barkdull-Faulk School was the setting Thursday afternoon, May 10 for the final Parent-Teachers Association meeting for the current school year. In harmony with the occasion Mrs. Harvard Nix gave an interesting account of the many accomplishments of the organization this year. The important projects of the year included the installation of an electric water cooler; a coffee urn for the cafeteria; furniture for the sick room; and donation of a beautifully framed portrait of Miss Julia Wossman whose retirement last year climaxed a long and beneficent career with Barkdull-Faulk School.

Mrs. C. P. Guerriero, president of the Twin City Council of Parents and Teachers installed the newly elected officers who are, Mrs. Harvard Nix, president; Mrs. A. W. Johnson, first vice-president; Mrs. Guy Coats, second vice-president; Mrs. John A. Peters, secretary and Mrs. Ed Thomas, treasurer.

Mrs. Guy Coats reported that she, Mrs. Nix and Mrs. Broomfield acquired many new and interesting ideas at the state convention in Shreveport recently.

Miss May Coker was welcomed upon her return to the school faculty after several weeks illness. Miss Coker reported that Mr. A. C. Lea, as chairman of the fathers of the Parent-Teachers Association, recently presented the school a handsome flag and staff for use in the auditorium.

The occasion was enhanced by a social hour at the conclusion of the business session. Refreshments were served in the library in a cordial atmosphere created by the floral arrangements by the hospitality committee and the musical and vocal renditions by Miss Dorothy Tullos and Mrs. A. W. Johnson.

Millions of barrels of oil are being conserved every day in the oil industry by stopping waste from evaporation and fire.

NEWS FROM THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

There is something about the appearance and the feel of a new book that is irrestible. In the past week several new titles have been added to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library. They will have wide appeal. One of the most popular modern authors is Frank Yerby. His newest title is "A Woman Called Fancy." This is the story of a poor white girl who went out in the world to make her fortune. Her only asset was her beauty. This is the story of how she used it to make a place for herself. Another popular writer is Bruce Lancaster, who specializes in historical novels. His latest one is "Venture in the East." In this book he departs from his usual setting of the American Revolution or the Civil war. This story has for its setting 17th century Japan, at a period when the Dutch East India Company had a rich but precarious foothold in the little-known land. Most people know about the opening of Japan by Commodore Perry, but very few know about the closing of Japan to the Western world several centuries earlier. This is an astonishing recreation of a people so far away in time and place and especially in customs as to seem almost unreal. Mr. Lancaster has brought them alive for us in a fascinating story. Don't miss it.

I. A. . Wylie has written a number of books about the contemporary European scene. Her latest novel is "Candles for Therese. This is the story of the aftermath of the War and the people who lived in the little town of Janrac. The story is beautifully written and will have a large audience.

Readers who are looking for something in a lighter vein will welcome the latest book by P. G. Wodehouse, "Nothing serious." This is a collection of ten short stories in the true Wodehouse style. He is considered one of the outstanding humorists of our day and this book will add to his stature. eaders who welcomed Elizabeth Eliot's "Alice" last year will be glad to know that she has another story written in the same style. This one is called "Henry." It is the story of a well meaning but worthless Englishman and his marriage to Dr. Pamela Merritt. There is humor and tragedy to be found in this story. It is especially written for those who like English novels.

One of the outstanding novelists of our day is Lion Feuchtwanger. He does not produce a book every year for he is extremely careful in his research and his prose is masterly. His latest novel is "This is the Hour." It is based on the life of Goya, one of the immortals of art, who was also a fallible mortal. This story is set in the turbulent Spain of the Napoleonic era. Goya was involved in the fate of Spain at a turning point in his country's history. This story of his love for the Duchess of Alba reflects his human complexity as well as his artistic greatness. Feuchtwanger has written a novel about their live which is extremely readable and is most exciting.

New mystery stories are always popular. "Mr. Denning Drives North" by Alec Coppel, and "Murder Comes First" by Frances and Richard Lockeridge are the new and exciting titles.

There are a number of other new works of fiction which are recent acquisitions of the Ouachita Parish Public Library. There should be something for every taste.

"The Twentyfifth Hour by C. Virgil Gheorghiu is a story that shows the after effects of the war in Europe. "The Southwest Corner" by Mildred Walker is the kind of story that warms ones heart. It is delightful. "Quiet Street" by Zelda Popkin is a good family story. "Embroidered City" by Lewis David Gelfan has a Chinese background and is most exciting. "The Ragged Ones" by Burke Davis is a fascinating story of the American Revolution. "The Hunter" by James Aldridge is another story for those who like to read about the days when the West was being opened up. The books mentioned in this column and many others are available at the four branches of the Ouachita Parish Public Library.

Housewives Can Economize By Using Dry Beans

The housewife who knows beans knows that dry beans are the buy when saving pennies counts more than saving minutes, Mrs. Mildred Swift from the Agricultural Extension Department says.

Here are some tips to remember in preparing dry beans. Wash and discard imperfect ones. Gently boiling beans cooks beans just as rapid boiling and keeps them from breaking and becoming mushy. Beans have such a mild flavor that they combie with many different seasonings. Boston baked beans take their traditional blend of flavor from molasses, mustard and a little cured pork. Other appetizing additions are: Tomato sauce, catsup, onion, celery, bell pepper, garlic and chili. Cooked beans may be combined with cream sauce, topped with grated cheese and browned. You can cook the beans dry, mash, add bread crumbs, egg and seasoning, shape into sausage and brown in hot fat. Don't forget hearty bean soup.

Here are two menus using bean dishes—

Bean sausage: boiled cabbage, carrot, celery and onion salad; banana cream pie. Another is: Bean soup, tomato aspic or fruit salad with cottage cheese; custard pie.

MISS PEGGY ALEXANDER BRIDE OF DEWITT FULLER, JR.

In a ceremony marked with beauty and simplicity Miss Peggy Alexandria, became the bride of Mr. DeWitt Fuller, Jr., at 2 o'clock Sunday May 13, in the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Alexander of Hodge.

The double - ring ceremony was performed by the pastor Rev. J. E. Calloway. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Fuller Sr. of Shreveport Louisiana.

The vows were exchanged before an altar on each side of which stood tall baskets of fan shaped gladioli against a backgraound of fern. An arch of splendor with white tapers burning in tall branched candelabra glowed against the lovely floral setting.

Bridesmaid was Miss Matta Loy who wore an orchid Swiss organdy on the full skirt of which embroidered daisies were appliqued. She chose white accessories and a corsage of white split carnations. A rhinestone necklace and ear screws to match completed her ensemble.

The bridegroom's brother, Mr. Dan Fuller, of Shreveport, served as best man.

The bride was radiant in a white dreamy cloud like sheer organdy. The close fitting bodice was artistically embroidered with roses and their leaves in high relief. The square neckline featured short cap sleeves and her full ballerina length skirt with matching embroidery falling into crisp folds. A white orchid tied with narrow white satin ribbons cascaded from her whit. Bible. Her shoes were orchid linen. The black off the face lace straw was supplemented by two orchid flowers. She wore a necklace of pearls with matching ear screws.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Alexander chose a gray crepe with navy accessories. Her corsage was of pink rosebuds. Mrs. Fuller, mother of the bridegroom, was becomingly attired in a navy sheer print and a corsage of white split carnations.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the home of the bride's parents. White predominated in the floral decorations of the reception rooms. In the dining room the bride's table was overlaid with a lovely crocheted cloth which hung to the floor. The three - tiered wedding confection topped by a miniature bride and groom and embossed in lilies of the valley stood at one end of the table which was centered with a crystal bowl filled with white daisies and fern flanked by branched candlebras burning slender white tapers. The punch bowl was at the opposite end.

Miss Nellie Jo Smith poured the punch while Mrs. Ray Raney served the cake to the guests after it was first cut by the bride and groom. Miss Janice Corley presided over the bride's book.

Mr. and Mrs. Fuller will be at home in Shreveport where they are both employed.

Davis, and the bridal attendants.

The reception rooms were decorated with lavish arrangements of spring flowers in the prospective bride's chosen color of pink throughout.

Centering the bare polished table was an arrangement of pink calla lilies tied with wide bands of pink satin ribbon extending over the table, flanked by crystal candlelabra.

Upon entering, Miss Dorothy Dell Barksdale presented guests with tiny bags of pink tulle filled with rice, garlanded with sweetheart roses and forget-me-nots, bearing an inscription in silver, "Ann Marie and Cecil, June 23."

Mrs. Alex T. Hunt and Mrs. Allen Barksdale, alternating with Mrs. Marvin T. Green and Mrs. Felton Green, presided at the punch bowl. Others assisting in the serving courtesies were Miss Alice Herad, Miss Martha Nicol, Miss Ann McLane and Mrs. Kenneth Dale Kilpatrick.

On this occasion the bride-elect was wearing a bouffant nylon tulle in pale shell pink, trimmed with rosettes of tulle encrusted in sequins cascading from one shoulder diagonally across bodice and down opposite side of skirt. She carried a nosegay of pink rosebuds and forget-me-nots.

Key Play May Be First Trick

By Oswald Jacoby

The approach of the annual Canadian - American tournament (Montreal, May 24-27) reminds me of a hand played by Percy Sheardown, whose foursome won the team event last year.

Sheardown, who held the south cards, didn't want to bid the slam in hearts until he was virtually pushed there. However, the more the enemy bid clubs the more it seemed that the north hand would be weak in clubs—with strength where it could be used.

As it happened, of course, North had the ace of clubs—a nearly useless card. If he had held the king of diamonds instead of the ace of clubs the heart slam would have been a cinch.

Opening lead—♣ 3

Sheardown had to make the best of the situation—which he proceeded to do in fine style. His first move was to play a low club from dummy and ruff in his own hand.

He next drew trumps with the ace and jack, after which he returned a low spade from dummy. This put East on the horns of a dilemma.

If East played low, South's queen would win. Then dummy would be entered via the ace of diamonds and the ace of clubs would be led for declarer to discard his remaining spade. The rest, of course, would be easy.

If East put up the ace of spades at once, he could not prevent declarer from setting up one long spade in the dummy. South would be able to discard one diamond on the king of spades, a second on the long spade, and a third on the ace of clubs.

In short, the key play came right at the first trick. Declarer must not take the ace of clubs because he doesn't know whether to discard a spade or a diamond.

What would have happened if West had opened a diamond instead of the useless club? That, Sheardown says, would have wiped the smile right off his face. Fortunately for enterprising bidders, the opening lead is not always a killer.

CARD Sense

Q—The bidding has been:

South, 1 Heart; West, Pass; North, 1 Spade; East, Pass.

South, 3 Clubs; West, Pass; North, 3 Diamonds; East, Pass.

You, South, hold: Spades A-Q-6-3, Hearts A-Q-10-8-6, Diamond 5, Clubs K-Q-J. What do you do?

A—Bid three spades. There is no need to bid more energetically at this point. You have indicated that value of your hand, and it is time to see what your partner can add to his story.

Today's Question

The bidding has been:

South, 1 Heart; West, Pass; North 1 Spade; East, Pass.

South, 3 Clubs; West Pass; North 3 Diamonds; East, Pass.

South, 3 Spades; West, Pass; North, 3 No-trump; East, Pass.

You, South, hold: Spades A-Q-6-3, Hearts A-Q-10-8-6, Diamond 5, Clubs K-Q-J. What do you do?

LET'S EXPLORE YOUR MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. S.

Answer to Question No. 1

1. No. Psychologist Allison Davis says (paraphrased) :Adolescents in lower classes have radically different notions of behavior toward sex relations, social roles at different ages, attitude toward parents and friends, etc. from middle-class teenagers. Things as well as behavior that seem rewarding and desirable to a middle class teenager are often not so at all to one reared in the so-called lower classes. Problems of teenagers depend immensely on what their social class expects of them.

Answer to Question No. 2

2. True as gospel. If ever we needed to review the methods, courage, fortitude, undying faith in freedom that enabled our forefathers to transform America from a wilderness into a world-power, it is now. We should all re-read "It's a Time For Greatness," by Herbert Agar, which was a clarion call to all America in World War II. Every day we should ask ourselves whether we are truly dedicated to all the ideals that made us great.

Answer to Question No. 3

3. No Many people with moderate abilities do big things because they acquired the habit in childhood. Yale Psychologist Catherine Cox Miles showed that, while all great men have excellent abilities, much of their success was due to their habit from childhood of going at big things and seeing them through. It's the habit that counts. Children should be given big tasks as rapidly as they can shoulder them.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

By Oswald Jacoby

How To Play For Fast Out

When the discard pile is born frozen (that is, when the dealer turns up a wild card or a red three), a long struggle often develops. Very often neither side will meld until the pile can be grabbed at the same time.

However, occasionally one player will meld from his hand for one reason or another. For example, he may develop four or five of a kind and may think that a fast out is better than a continued struggle for the pile.

When your partner makes such a meld, give up the idea of fighting for the pile. Not only has your partner reduced his hand and thus weakened his power to fight, but also his meld is a signal that he doesn't have a good fighting hand.

As the melder's partner it is up to you to add natural cards to his meld if possible. It is also advisable to put down a meld or two of your own. Do all you can to help your partner go out, but preserve one or two safe discards just in case your partner still needs a few plays before he can finish the hand.

If an opponent melds in this situation you course depends on your position. When the melder is at your right you must discard with great caution. The opponent who follows you has his full hand (for at least one play) and has no worries about making the count.

When the melder is at your left, you should make the initial meld if possible. This is especially true if the opponent has used six or more cards in his meld.

In this situation you are very unlikely to give away the pile to the melder. He has only a few cards and probably has only one other pair in his hand. Hence it does not hurt you particularly to deplete your own hand.

Your meld relieves your partner of the necessity of acquiring or keeping the count. It gives him information about safe discards. It gives your side credit for red threes and protects you against a complete defeat if the opponents meld out in a hurry. Finally, in rare cases, it may fit your partner's hand so beautifully that he can meld out himself.

Low Rent Housing Aids Small Wage Earner

The low-rent public housing program enables communities to provide adequate housing for low income families who otherwise would have to live in substandard housing. It is a local program, operated with federal financial assistance.

The program is not new. It was begun by the United States Housing Act in 1937 when authorized federal aid to communities to house—families . . in the lowest income group . . . who cannot afford to pay enough to cause private enterprise . . . to build an adequate supply of decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings for their use.

Under the 1937 act, a total of 191,700 homes have been provided in 268 localities at rates within the means of low-income families. The public housing portion of the Housing Act of 1949 amends the 1937 act to authorize financial assistance for the construction and operation of 810,000 additional low-rent dwellings in a six-year program.

The problem which gives rise to this program is a familiar one. Families in the lowest income group cannot afford either to buy or rent good standard housing. They are obliged to live in substandard or slum housing because that is the only kind they can afford. The problem, then, is to make good housing available to them at prices they can pay.

This is how public housing solves th problem. Local housing authorities plan and build low-rent housing projects which they finance with the assistance of loans from the federal government. When the projects are built, the dwellings are rented to low-income families at rents scaled to what the individual family can pay. Since the rental revenue from the project is not enough to cover the cost of building and operating the housing, a deficit results.

The federal government makes up this cash deficit with a subsidy paid each year in the amount needed for that year This federal payment is known as the annual contribution. The local government also contributes to achieving low rents through exempting the projects from all taxation.

Payments in lieu of taxes, amounting to ten per cent of the shelter rent of the projects are made to the local government. Cities have generally found that their tax receipts have been increased as a result of the development of low-rent housing, and that they receive more in payments in lieu of taxes than the taxes previously assessed (and often not collected) on the sites so developed.

There are several provisions in the law to insure that only low-income families who cannot afford adequate privately owned housing are allowed to occupy low-rent housing. The principal ones are —

1. The top rent for admission must be at least 20 per cent below the rents at which private enterprise is providing a substantial supply of available standard housing, either new or old.

2. The net income of families at admission (less a $100 exemption for each minor member) cannot exceed five times the annual rent to be charged, including utilities.

3. Local authorities must set maximum income limits, both for admission to the project and for continued residence in it. These limits are subject to public housing administration approval.

4. The authority must make a written report to public housing administration showing that incomes of families admitted are within the limit.

5. The authority must re-examine the incomes of all tenant families periodically to adjust rents if necessary and to evict those families whose incomes have risen above the limit for continued occupancy.

Preference groups for the local authority's projects are as follows:

1. Families of disabled veterans whose disability has been determined by the Veterans Administration to be service-connected.

2. Families of deceased veterans or servicemen whose death has been determined by the Veterans Administration to be service-connected

3. Families of other veterans and servicemen.

4. Families without veteran or serviceman status.

The housing authority of the city of Monroe Louisiana, has two developments under Title III of the Housing Act. Project LA 6-1 George Breece Manor, on South First and Florida consists of 50 units. Project LA, 6-2, Dr. Arthur Johnson Manor, located on Texas Avenue is comprised of 76 units. These units will be completed around July 15.

Construction will begin very soon on 225-units of the second development known as Project LA 6-3 and 6-4.

Much credit is due the chairman and board of commissioners of the housing authority, who serve without pay, for their splendid efforts to initiate and develop the local housing program.

Members of the board are: Joseph S. Guerriero, chairman; Fred Fudickar, Jr., vice-chairman; Raleigh A. Poulos, commissioner; Samuel Rubin, commissioner; Ira Cagle, commissioner. Frank E. Smith is secretary and executive director.

Tucker Helps In Rescue Of Child

Much of the credit for saving the life of little Linda Roche, 2½-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Roche, 403 Webster street, who narrowly escaped drowning Friday in Bayou DeSiard, was given by witnesses to C. V. Tucker, Webster Street. Mr. Tucker, a good swimmer, leaped into the water and took both Mrs. Roche and her daughter to safety after the little girl had fallen into the bayou.

The near-tragedy occurred about 10:45 Friday morning at the point where Grand street meets the bayou. After Linda had fallen into the water her mother, although unable to swim, jumped in and attempted to rescue her. In this she received the timely assitance of Mr. Tucker.

The little girl took in a considerable quantity of water but soon recovered.

DOROTHY DIX

Take A Job?

Wife Who Doesn't Have To Is Better Off At Home

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: At 32 I have a wonderful husband and an 11-year-old daughter. After years of financial struggle and misunderstanding each other my husband and I have arrived at almost perfect harmony. It took us twelve years to do so, but we have achieved it at last and I feel that it is worth holding on to. My problem is this: I want to go back to work, but my husband doesn't want me to. I am studying typing and business English at home and planning to go to night school to take shorthand in the hope that he will change his mind by the time I finish. All the past years I couldn't consider myself for my mother and father had to be taken care of, then the baby. Now I find myself needing a change and dissatisfied with my life. Shall I continue to go on as before disregarding my own desires, or shall I keep on trying to get my husband to consent to my going back to business? MRS. W. I.

DOROTHY DIX

ANSWER: You say that you and your husband have achieved a harmonious married life and you feel that that is worth holding on to. So do I. It is the best thing that can come to any woman and the one who even contemplates risking it is so foolhardy that she needs a guardian. All of your domestic machinery is running smoothly now. Don't wreck it by throwing a monkey-wrench into it. Don't even cause friction by arguing with your husband about going into business.

IT'S NOT NECESSARY

For the woman who has to be wage-earner as well as wife and mother because of necessity, I have only the most profound respect, but I think it is a great mistake for a woman to work outside of th home if she has a husband able and willing to support the family.

Try to see your husband's point of view. Try to realize that it means one thing to a man to come home to a smiling, rested wife who is ready to talk to him and amuse him, who has all the lights lit and a good dinner smoking on the table, and another thing to come home to a dark house and wait for a wife to come home from work with some delicatessen stuff in a bag.

And don't feel that because your daughter is 11 years old you have done your duty by her and she no longer needs your care. At that age she needs you a thousand times more than she did when she was a baby. Then you could hire a nurse to take care of her, but no synthetic mother can take the place of a real mother to an adolescent girl.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a widow 29 years old and have met a man 12 years older, whom I like very much. He is handsome, a good worker and kind-hearted. Women are greatly attracted to him. He is good to me, but he drinks considerably. He tells me he can't help it. When he isn't drinking, he is everything a woman would want, when he is drinking there is no co-operation from him, and he wants everyone to do exactly as he wishes. My heart aches when he is like this for he has a wonderful mother who wants him to stop drinking so we can get married. I'm so upset about the situation I am just about sick. Is there a way for me to help him? LETTIE

ANSWER: You do have something to be upset about, Lettie, but not nearly as much as you'll have if you go ahead and marry this gay Lothario. Your letter doesn't show any indication that he wants to reform, and unless he does, the case is well nigh hopeless.

If he wants to cure himself of drinking, there are agencies which will be glad to help him, but if he's satisfied with the way he's living, better drop him quick. I'm sure you can meet some nice young man who will be a much better matrimonial risk, and if you don't, believe me, single blessedness is preferable to the miserable existence you'd eke out as a drunkard's wife.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: We are always hearing so much about parents who slave and sacrifice for their children that it makes my husband and me feel that we are very unworthy parents. We have not worked our fingers to the bones, neither have we foregone pleasures nor made any particular sacrifices. Have we neglected our son because we have not denied ourselves everything to heap luxuries on him? MRS. J. E. B.

ANSWER: I think you have been ideal parents because you have simply taken parenthood in your stride instead of making a chore of it, and you and your child have been the better and the happier for it.

I have always contended that children should do their share of the work and bear their share of the burdens of making a home. It makes them understand and appreciate their parents and sympathize with them, and it makes them value their home because they have a responsibility in keeping it up. The sacrificial parents do nothing but make their children selfish and no-account.

BUDDY POPPIES

"Symbol Of A Nation's Devotion"

Emblem of the dead and dying on the fields of Flanders In 1918, the V. F. W. Buddy Poppy has been glorified by the American people as their "Flower of Remembrance." Down through the years, ever since 1922 to be exact, the V. F. W. Buddy Poppy has given to all patriotic citizens—rich and poor alike—their chance to honor the dead by helping the living. The annual sale of Buddy Poppies serves two great purposes. It fosters the beautiful custom of wearing these little flowers, once each year, in mute salute to the memory of America's honored dead; it provides the funds that are required to serve the daily personal needs of the nation's disabled and needy veterans, and their dependents. There are millions of unfortunate veterans—as well as widows and orphans and dependent parents—who are unable to qualify for government aid. Why? Mainly because the government itself—in time of war—has never been able to maintain accurate records on the physical welfare of each individual in uniform. Through no fault of their own, these veterans—many of them the victims of the lingering effects of exposure, shock and malnutrition—are unable to qualify for help from their government because their service records fail to confirm the origin of their ailments. Your support of the annual sale of Buddy Poppies makes it possible for the Veterans of Foreign Wars to maintain its great, nationwide program of free rehabilitation service to the millions of needy veterans. Every dime or dollar which you may give in exchange for a Buddy Poppy goes into a special sacred fund—one that will be spent for nothing but the relief and rehabilitation of America's disabled veterans, and their needy loved ones. Remember the dead who are buried near the battlefields where they died, or in our cemeteries here at home. Let's do them honor by helping the living!

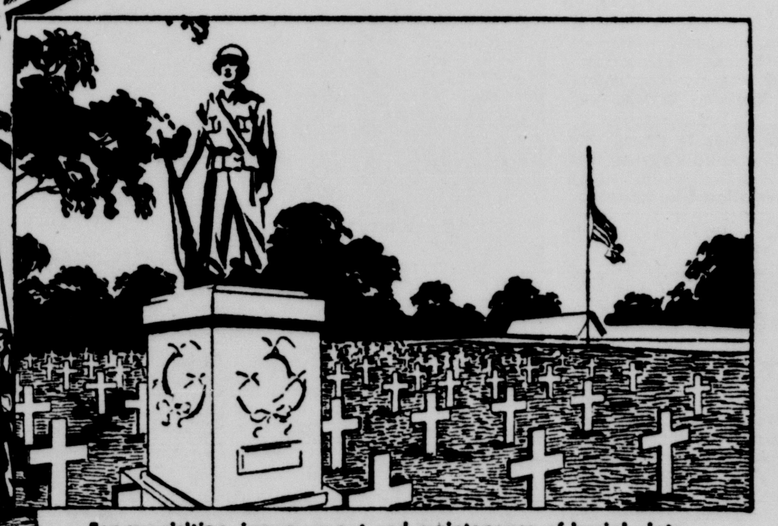
For the aid, relief and comfort of disabled and needy veterans, their dependents, or their widows and orphans.

For hospital entertainment, for needy veterans and service patients.

For rehabilitation, welfare and service work, including liaison service with the Veterans Administration.

For maintenance or expansion of the V.F.W. National Home for widows and orphans of veterans at Eaton Rapids, Mich.

For necessary expenses for military funerals of deceased veterans.



For acquisition, improvement and maintenance of burial plots and the decoration of graves of veterans and servicemen.

Harris Builds Success As Storekeeper-Farmer

Merchant Runs Up Business From $1,500 To $165,000 Annually

By Otis B. Hassell

Winnsboro, La., May 19.—(Special)—Charles H. Harris, 43-year-old merchant and civic leader of Jigger, is a living example of the success that can be obtained by anyone who has the will to work, the nerve to try, and keep trying and the character to always conduct personal and business affairs on a Golden Rule basis.

Harris is the owner of the only store at Jigger, located in the center of a prosperous Franklin parish farming community, ten miles south of Winnsboro. His store could be called a one man town, for here almost any article or service required by the public may be secured.

The bare facts of the story of Chas. H. Harris, since he came to Franklin parish 19 years ago are almost unbelievable. He married the former Miss Ethel Powell of Pineville, in 1926 and after going broke while working as a peddler in Grant parish in 1931, he and Mrs. Harris came to Franklin in the fall of that year to pick cotton.

At this time the area between Gilbert and Fort Necessity was cut over timber land which was being offered for sale by T. B. Gilbert & Co. in 40 acre plots with the provision that the owner clear the land and work it for three years before making the first payment. A dirt road was being constructed between Gilbert and Fort Necessity and Mr. Harris had an idea that a business midway between the two towns would succeed.

In 1932, with only $10 cash, he began to put his idea into reality. First he went to Dr. L. J. Sanders, who also owned a small sawmill, and told him that he wanted to go in business and that if he would sell him enough lumber to build a 10 x 12 foot store building he would pay for it as soon as he could make that much money. Dr. Sanders was so astonished at first that he was speechless, but when he found his voice he told Mr. Harris that anyone with enough nerve to ask a rank stranger for $130 worth of lumber on credit was bound to be a success and that he could have the lumber.

He built the store and stocked it with $90 worth of goods, bought on time. His first year's business grossed $1,500. In 1949 it was over $165,000.

In August, 1933, the Jigger postoffice was established with Mrs. Harris as postmaster. She still holds that post. The original store is much enlarged to meet increasing needs.

Most of the land is still owned by the families who bought the original 40 acre plots. They are a friendly group of people, and the beautiful homes and well kept yards, pastures and fields are mute evidence of their resourcefulness and hard work. There are four churches, here, two Baptist and two Holiness. Three of them are full time churches and provide a parsonage for their ministers.

A new voting precinct has been established here and drainage canals, gravel roads, mail, school bus, bookmobile routes, electricity and Butane gas help make it a modern community in every respect. Mr. Harris has been a leader in acquiring all these improvements and with his store has tried to render a complete community service. Besides his complete stock of furniture, home appliances, pianos, dry goods, shoes, feed, groceries, auto supplies and hardware, he repairs radios, offers all types of plumbing service and does service work on the home appliances. He brought the first radio to Jigger and one year he sold 643 radios.

The inventory of the store is now about $20,000. He also buys and sells land and now owns 153 acres and has eleven rent houses. He is "well fixed" with bonds and does not owe any anything, with the exception of his weekly and monthly bills for merchandise. Mr. Harris does his own bookkeeping and employed in the store besides he and Mrs. Harris, are: his brother, Woodrow, who has been with him since 1935, Robert Day Boles and Mrs. Teresa Boles.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris have five children, two boys and three girls. His oldest son, Charles Anderson, 23, is married, has two children and now has complete charge of the piano business. The other son, Allen, 14, is attending Brown Military Academy at Sulphur Springs, Arkansas. The three daughters are Chloe, 17, who finishes high school this year; Cleo, 16, who will finish high school next year, and Mary Alice, 12.

NEW FARMALL IS INTRODUCED

Scott Tractor Dealer Here Says It's Superior In 17 Ways

A new McCormic Farmall tractor, the two-row, two-plow Super C, is being introduced in this community this week by Scott Truck and Tractor ,International Harvester dealer in Monroe.

"It's superior 17 ways — with more power, more pep, more pull," says Mr. Scott about the new Super C latest addition to International Harvester's line of five Farmall tractors.

Some of these 17 superior features, according to Scott Truck and Tractor are the larger bore valve-in-head engine that provides 2 per cent more power on every power stroke and delivers an abundance of smooth power over the entire load range; battery ignition starting; big-diameter, high-leverage steering wheel that steers easily, with finger-touch response; new self-energizing double-disk brakes that insure positive pin-point turning; new upholstered hydraulic shock-absorbing seat for all-day riding comfort; strengthened chassis from front to rear, and weight matched to power for high-traction pull.

Like all the other Farmall tractors—the Cub, Super A, H and M—the new Super C has a full line of matched, quick-change McCormick equipment designed especially to use with it. This includes direct-connected, forward-mounted and trailing equipment.

The direct-connected implements include two-bottom moldboard plows two-furow disk plow four-disk harrow plow, two-row cotton and corn listers, and mower.

Forward-mounted equipment includes a two-row middlebuster, two-row checkrow corn planter, two-row runner-type planter for cotton, corn, peanuts and beans, six-row vegetable planter, two-row cotton and corn cultivator, and six-row vegetable cultivator.

Other equipment available: a rear-mounted six-row vegetable planter, and a four-row beet and bean cultivator with front and rear sections.

Mr. Scott urges all farmers in this community to see the new Farmall Super C, now on display, and to ask for an on-the-farm demonstration

Plant At Shreveport To Spend $3,300,000

Shreveport, La., May 9.—(AP)—A $3,300,000 expansion program at the Atlas Processing Company plant here for the production of benzene was announced today by J. B. Atkins, president.

Ground already has been broken for the project, Atkins said, and construction of the new equipment is scheduled to begin by Monday. The facilities are expected to be in operation during the first quarter of 1952, at which time they will produce about 17,600 gallons of benzene daily, Atkins said.

The firm was granted a necessity certificat efor accelerated depreciation on the cost of the facilities by the defense production administration.

Gasoline for production of benzene here will be taken from the Carthage, Texas, field through an already existant pipe line. The benzene to be produced at the plant is committed under a sales contract to a major chemical company, Atlas officials said.

Benzene, Atkins said, is in great demand for production of styrene for synthetic rubber, phenol, nylon, aniline, synthetic detergents and numerous other products.

Unexpected Visitor Delights French Class At N. L. S. C.

By Francis Marie Whittelsey
(N. S. L. C. Student)

An unexpected visitor recently ventured into French class at Northeast Louisiana State College, and unraveled a small portion of personal history that provided a long-to-be-remembered experience in uniqueness for Miss Hazel Mitchell's students.

Perky, bright-eyed little Monsieur Guillaume, now 65 years old, was born in Laon, France. He attended the university at Dijon. Active combat in World War I resulted in the loss of all his teeth. This handicap does not restrain him, however, from speaking fluent French, Spanish, German, Italian, and English.

Shortly after World War I, Monsieur came to the United States and secured a position teaching French at Western Reserve University in Indiana. His growing success in this country soon enabled him to return annually to France in the summer to visit his family.

Tragedy struck Monsieur Guillaume when his wife became a hopeless victim of cancer. In a desperate effort to save her, he entrusted her to the expensive care of Mayo's Clinic in Rochester, Minn. Soon her medical expenses surpassed his means.

He was forced to resign his small teaching position and resort to the only trade he knew, that of tailoring. He unhesitatingly forgot his health and future security in a futile attempt to save her from an agonizing death.

Misfortune again befell Monsieur while he was attending a tailors' meeting. His arm became ensnarled in one of the machines under demonstration. It was so badly mangled that it was rendered permanently useless.

A twist of fate saved Monsieur Guillaume from destitution. He received a letter from a sympathetic friend in Petersburg, Fla., offering him a home and a job as cashier in his French Sidewalk cafe. However, his friend overlooked the not-too-small item of traveling expenses, so monsieur simply started out on his coast-to-coast journey by foot.

Arriving in Monroe, he sought the French teacher at the college, Miss Mitchell. He told her his story and implored her aid in securing a little food.

In appreciation of her generosity, he attempted to make a small repayment by delivering a brief lecture on French pronunciation. He seemed delighted with the response of the class.

Upon completion of his talk, he expressed his gratitude for Miss Mitchell's help. Turning to leave, he looked back at her and said, "You will hear from me."

Just a chance acquaintance, the little French hitchhiker with a touch of pride, proceeded on his journey, having taught the French class a lesson far beyond the value of French.

Author, World Traveler Dies

Decatur, Ill., May 16. —(AP)— Latharo H. Hoover, 65, world traveler and author of a children's book series, was found shot to death in his home yesterday a few hours after his wife obtained a divorce.

Coroner Harold Brintlinger said Hoover apparently took his own life. Notes to a son, a daughter and a brother were found in the home.

Hoover was the author of the "Campfire Series" of travel and adventure books for boys. Friends said he had written eight books in the series.

He at various times taught English and French, worked as a railroad employe, and was employed as a packinghouse clerk. Since he retired in 1929, he raised bees and wrote his books.

In addition to his ex-wife, Mrs. Addie Hoover, he is survived by a son and a duaghter. Funeral services will be held Saturday.

Gamblers' Valhalla: In Las Vegas, waitresses like this bring the bettors their drinks right at the wheels. The drinks are free, the girls are pretty—and the gambling's very legal.

Gamblers Are On The Run---to Las Vegas

Kefauver Probe Makes Nevada Boom As Big Spenders Suddenly Find It Healthier Where Gambling's Legal

By Douglas Larsen

Las Vegas, Nev.—(NEA)—They're seriously considering erecting a statue to Sen. Estes Kefauver in the center of this town.

They ought to. As a result of the crime probe he headed, the city's legalized gambling is enjoying an unprecedented boom. With illegal gambling considerably reduced in Miami, Chicago, Cleveland and the other big cities, the big spenders out to make a fast buck on the wheel or crap table are flocking to Las Vegas.

Week-end reservations at the flossier hotels like the Last Frontier Flamingo Desert Inn Thunderbird and El Rancho are getting scarce for next winter. Motels and private rooms are jammed all the time.

In the first three months of this year the state took in $542,326.91 from gambling taxes—two per cent of the gross—and license fees on slot machines. That's a record high.

Even seasoned old gamblers admit they've never seen the likes of what has been going on here in the last few months. The dice tables, gambling rooms, roulette wheels and slot machines are getting a fabulous 24-hour-a-day play. At four in the morning the "strip" is just as jammed with gamblers and good-time seekers as it is at noon or midnight. The click of the dice and whir of the slots are never silenced.

"We always have good money in town," explains one operator. "now we have important money in town. Why? Because the investigation turned a bright hot light on illegal gambling in other parts of the country. And suddenly a lot of people decided the desert climate of southern Nevada was absolutely necessary to their health."

By no stretch of the imgination are licensed Las Vegas operators trying to see legalized gambling to the rest of the country. That would ruin their business. But they claim that Nevada has a unique situation suited to legalized gambling which you find nowhere else in the U. S.

"The only two towns of any size are Las Vegas with 24,000 and Reno with 30,000 people. This makes it possible to control legalized gambling," an operator explains.

Since 1949, when national attention began to focus on the national syndicate's control of gambling, Nevada authorities have begun to tighten up on licenses. No person convicted of a felony can get one—unless the felony was bootlegging. Former bootleggers are okay in the eyes of Nevada's officials.

Nobody worries much about any big stick-ups of a casino. There are only four roads out of town. They can be blocked in 20 minutes and there's no place to hide out in Las Vegas.

Because the town's one commodity is the chance to gamble, Las Vegas has some unusual features. To lure the big bettors the hotels have been made plush and comfortable. But nobody in Las Vegas is here to make money on the tourist or hotel business.

The big hotels like the Last Frontier and Desert Inn don't actually compete. They put on a $15,000-a-week floor show; if you want to, you can watch it for a nickel soda with no cover or minimum. A terrific steak dinner for two with fancy trimmnigs can be had for $10. The rooms are as plush as you can find anywhere at astonishingly low prices, from $5 up for singles and $7 up for doubles. But getting reservations is the big problem now.

Gray Ladies Receive caps and pins

Seventeen Red Cross Gray Ladies, who serve the four homes for the aged in the Twin Cities, have received their caps and pins after completion of the Gray Ladies course and ten hours probationary service. Henry Haas, representing the City of Monroe, served officially in the capping ceremony May 10 at Red Cross headquarters in Monroe.

These volunteer participants serve the senile homes which include the St. Joseph Home and homes for the aged on Jackson, Pine and Adams streets. In addition to such duties as providing reading material, transportation when needed, reading letters and church material to the blind, making purchases of personal needs for blind and bed-ridden, arranging and distributing gift flowers, teaching simple handicrafts, and planning entertainment, the Gray Laides often serve in heartwarming circumstance.

Recently, for example, a Gray Lady attempted to locate the daughter of an elderly man who had lost all contact with her. Sending a letter to the last known address, the Gray Lady — after many forwards and addresses unknowns—received a reply from the daughter in Chicago. This letter thanked the Red Cross for bringing her news of her "lost" father at long last, and praised the Red Cross Gray Ladies for their unusual and serviceable work.

Those Gray Ladies capped in the May 10 ceremonies were Mrs. B. M. Stone, Mrs. B. E. McWilliams, Ms. Underwood Formey, Mrs. Marshall Johnston, Mrs. P. J. Embanato, Mrs. H. W. Kight, Mrs. Milton Coverdale, Mrs. J. C. Brieghtfeller, Mrs. M. A. Peterson, Mrs. M. A. Newburn, Mrs. Christine Moore, Mrs. Charles Marx, Mrs. Neil Buie, Mrs. Ernest Strauss, Mrs. C. D. MacAdams Mrs. Roy Fisher, all of the Twin Cities, and Mrs. J. H. Dodd, of Delhi.

Henry Haas, representing the City of Monroe, places caps upon the volunteer Red Cross Gray Ladies, after completion of their course and ten hours probationary service.

'The Magnificent Yankee' To Open At Capitol Soon

Louis Calhern is one actor who unwittingly has become a national figure. After two seasons on the stage as Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes in "The Magnificent Yankee" he now brings the famous judicial personality to an even wider audience in M-G-M's film version of the Emmet Lavery play.

The stage and screen star found the experience of recreating Holmes one of the most stimulating of his career. "When you play a role of this kind, people begin to identify you with the acutal person you're protraying," he says.

"During the run of the play in Washington, D. C., a certain cab driver insisted on taking me everywhere I wanted to go free of charge. His explanation was that he had been a great favorite of Justice Holmes in the old days.

"Then there was the delegation of Harvard law students who thought it only fitting and proper to visit me in my dressing room after one of the New York performances. I felt that they had come in expecting to have an informal chat with the judge himself. Instead they found a somewhat exhausted actor."

Calhern says that one of his most trying experiences occurred when he was invited to a dinner he in his honor by the Massachusetts Bar Association. "Many of the guests had once been constituents of the judge," he explained. "What could I say? After the thousand-and-one quotes from Holmes, which they all knew so well, there was hardly anything I could add. Moreover, Holmes was one of the finest dialogue writers who ever lived and any repartee from me would have been inadequate in comparison. So I took the easy way out. I limited myself to answering their questions about the stage production."

The actor states that the play has undergone few changes in its transfer to the motion picture medium. "For one thing, Emmet Lavery, its author, prepared the screen treatment, which in itself insured fidelity to the original. It is still the story of the judge's thirty years in Washington. However, the screen treatment afforded a wider scope for the action. On the stage, the entire action took place in the judge's home on I street. In the picture, we follow him beyond this. We show the judge as he appeared in the supreme court and we get the true feeling of washington in scenes played against backgrounds of the Capitol, the Lincoln Memorial, the Washington Monument, the White House and other historic edifices."

It was during a location sequence filmed in Washington, D. C., that Calhern realized the ingenuity of studio make - up men in the art of creating an illusion close at hand. The scene depicted him, as Holmes, descending the steps of the Capitol building. Since the supposed date was 1902, the area had been roped off to prevent any pedestrians in modern dress from wandering by. A small crowd had gathered ouside the restricted section as the actor started down the stairs. Suddenly the air was split by the piercing cry of a veteran government employe.

"I saw Oliver Wendell Holmes come and go like that for years," she exclaimed. "For a moment, I thought he had come back. That man not only looks like the judge — he walks like him!"

COMING TO CAPITOL

Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, one of America's most celebrated supreme court judges, is brought to the screen by Louis Calhern in "The Magnificent Yankee," M-G-M's heartwarming drama now playing at the Capitol Theater Tuesday and Wednesday. Calhern originally scored in the role in the Broadway stage version of the Emmet Lavery play.

SUSPECTED OF INFIDELITY

Barry Sullivan, playing Loretta Young's invalid husband, suspects his wife of infidelity in "Cause For Alarm," M-G-M's suspense-filled drama, opening a three-day engagement at the Paramount Theater today. Bruce Cowling and Margalo Gillmore are others in leading roles.

Loretta Young Has Gripping Role In Cause For Alarm

A story pregnant with powerful dramatic situations and suspense has been brought to the Paramount Screen, starting today, for three days, MGM's "Cause For Alarm!" with Loretta Young in a role that will merit her applause for some time to come.

Based on a story by Larry Marcus and a screen play by Mel Dinelli and Tom Lewis, "Cause For Alarm!" unfolds the story of an innocent woman whose jealous husband accumulates a series of circumstantial evidence which points her out as a murderess. George Jones (Barry Sullivan), suffering from a heart ailment, is convinced that his wife, Ellen, is in love with Dr. Danney Grahame (Bruce Cowling) and that the two are conspiring to hasten his death. Resolved to kill Ellen, instead, George intrusts her with a letter to the District Attorney, in which he incriminates her. When he suddenly dies of a heart attack, his terror-stricken wife finds a mountain of false but indicting evidence piled up against her, and her first move is to attempt to retrieve the incriminating letter. The episodes in which she follows the course of the fatal letter from the bag of the neighborhood postman to the offices of the post office superintendent, the pressure laid upon her by inquisitive neighbors and her husband's prying aunt, her efforts to prevent the doctor from becoming involved as a suspect, built up to a terrifying cataclysm of suspense until Ellen is able to vindicate herself in the story's surprise climax.

As the nerve-torn wife, Loretta Young, well-known as a comedienne, now proves herself a powerful dramatic star as well and holds the center of the stage in every sequence in which she appears. Hers is a taut, gripping performance which sustains the character throughout. Barry Sullivan, as the neurotic, jealous husgand, is highly successful in a role demanding complete credulence, with Bruce Cowling giving a warm and sympathetic performance as the doctor. There are excellent supporting performances as well, particularly those of Margalo Gillmore as the garrulous aunt, Irving Bacon as the postman, and Bradley Mora as Hoppy, a neighborhood boy with a love for cookies.

Tay Garnett, directing "Cause For Alarm!" has not wasted a scene nor a moment of suspense, with the production end admirably handled by Tom Lewis, who, incidentally, is the husband of Loretta Young in private life. Together they have given the screen one of its most tnese shockers, and Miss Young a role which reveals her remarkable versatility as a star performer.

In Hollywood

Hollywood, May 19.—An old-time director advanced a startling theory the other evening during a discussion of the many over-lapping factors which may be contributing to the present public apathy where moves are concerned. He suggested, quite seriously, that one of the prime reasons for falling box-office returns is the over-all improvement in screen acting.

At first thought, such a premiere may seem completely ridiculous. On second thought however, it's worth kicking around.

As that director pointed out, the movie industry was built on the system—and even the most casual appraisal of the outstanding stars in screen history will offer evidence that the public chose its favorites on the basis of personality appeal, rather than acting ability. Some of the most inept actors who ever faced a movie camera became popular idols a couple of decades ago.

The more an actor subordinates himself to the role he plays (I'm sticking to the director's argument) the less chance he has to display his own personality. In short, assuming absolutely perfect portrayals, by a number of actors, of the same role, those actors would all seem identical.

The movie industry of today, my friend the director contends is still trying to operate on the star system basing its picture-selling campaigns on the popular appeal of players. And the players at the same time are losing their popular appeal because by sacrificing their personal idiosyncrasies to the demands of good acting, they are losing their individuality. And the same irony he argues further exists in their off-screen conduct. There, also, most of today's top-notchers are subordinating individuality to a pattern, and that pattern, while in better taste than the non - conformity of yesterday's stars lacks "color" and appeal to the public's imagination.

The net result in his opinion is that the movie fan has no continuous incentive such as the one which used to be provided by star-worship to keep him buying tickets.

Preview Nights: Pic of a mediocre week: Warner Brothers' "Fort Worth" (Randolph Scott-David Brian-Phyllis Thaxter). One of the better western dramas of recent years—a thoroughly believable and exceptionally tense "action type" story that will keep the average fan poised on the edge of his seat from its opening shot to its final fade-out. Put it on your "should see" list if you like rugged melodrama. . . . Good: Universal - International's "Hollywood Story" (Richard Conte-Julia Adams). Off-the-beaten-path murder mystery, recognizably based on the unsolved slaying of Director William Desmond Taylor, and probably the most realistic presentation of Hollywood ever achieved on the screen. . . . Fair: MGM's "Mr. Imperium" (Lana Turner-Ezio Pinza-Majorie Main-Barry Sullivan). An "old-hat" plot and second-rate music combine to make a picture that should have been excellent merely routine. . . . Paramount's "Ace In The Hole" (Kirk Douglas-Jan Sterling - Bob Arthur - Porter Hall). Despite outstanding performances by its principals, this "Ace" is apt to find itself trumped by the distasteful nature of the plot. . . . Looking west: Republic's "Wells Fargo Gunmaster." A high spot in the Allan "Rocky" Lane series.

If Hollywood is really interested in bettering its public relations, I'd like to call the attention of all studio czars to a guy named Dennis Day, and his performance a few nights ago at the annual police benefit show. Appearing without pay, Dennis really knocked himself out to entertain the huge crowd that filled the Shrine auditorium. The only reservation he imposed on his effort was the one dictated by physical exhaustion. After taking three curtain calls and singing eight encores, his vocal chords were so strained that he could only wave when the thunderous applause brought him out on the stage for the fourth time. An act like his is the very essence of good public relations for all branches of show business.

I'm amused by the following columned paragraph: "Audry Totter and Armand Deutsch are quietly making plans to marry in August. They do not want to follow the pattern of some Hollywood couples and marry the day after Armand (awating his final decree of divorce from Benay Venunta) is free, so they will wait at least a month."

Such sensitivity to convention seems a bit chucklesome in view of the fact that the engagement of Miss Totter and Deutsch has been written about repeatedly, for nearly a year, by every columnist in Filmville.

TWO WORLDS MEET

Lovely island maiden Debra Paget and handsome adventurer Louis Jourdan embrace in a tender moment in this scene from the technicolor spectacle of the South Seas, "Bird Of Paradise," opening a four-day engagement at the Paramount Theater Wednesday.

New Technicolor Spectacle Due In Bird Of Paradise'

The enchantment of the islands, the spectacle of volcanic eruption and the beauty of Technicolor in the tropics are the combined inducements of "Bird of Paradise," the lavish poetic romance emanating from Twentieth Century-Fox and opening Wednesday at the Paramount for four days. Louis Jourdan, Debra Paget and Jeff Chandler are starred in the island epic.

"Bird of Paradise," a completely new film inspired by the title of the famed hit play of the early 1900's was recently filmed on location in the Hawaiian islands. It reunites three of the principal talents responsible for the success of "Broken Arrow," stars Debra Paget and Jeff Chandler and writer-director Delmer Daves, who directed the earlier film. "Bird of Paradise" was developed along lines suggested by "Broken Arrow" in its treatment of native manners, customs and culture, as well as the story between a white adventurer and island maiden. Debra Paget is again the native beauty, with Jourdan, not James Stewart, as the invader.

From the original "Bird of Paradise" the final scene, the tribal sacrifice of a young innocent to the demands of the erupting volcano, has been retained, and given the realization which only the unlimited resources of the Technicolor movie theatre screen could effect.

Photographed amidst the coral, cocoanuts, volcanoes, orchids and pie-size hibiscus of the lush, subtropical Hawaiian islands, with hundreds of natives employed—several in important acting, singing and dancing assignment—"Bird of Paradise" is reported to emerge an epic Polynesian poem reflecting the culture, loves, superstitions and tragedy of the South Sea Islands. In terms of sheer spectacle, its like has not and been appoached in many years and bids fair never to be again, in view of the rising shortage and cost of materials.

Supporting the star trio are Maurice Schwartz, celebrated stage actor and guiding genius of the Yiddish Art Theatre in New York; Everett Sloane, distinguished screen, stage and radio actor who recently scored in "The Men;" Jack Elam, a suave new menace of threatening visage; Prince Lei Lani; Otto Waldis; and Alfred Zeisler. Harmon Jones served as Associate Producer on the film.

Mae Modes Proud That She Is Member Of Clan Chattans

Celebrated Scottish Group Has Members Scattered Over Globe

Mrs. Mae McIntosh Modes, prominent Monroe business and club woman, has many affiliations with various organizations, but one above all others is closest to her heart. She is one of the very few life members of Clan Chattan Association who live in the United States. Other members are scattered all over the globe.

Membership is open to persons of either sex bearing the name of or being descended from, any of the clans or septs of the Clan Chattan or having historical territorial connection with the Clan Chattan country. Names are to be submitted to the committee whose action is final. Its purpose is to promote friendly, social intercourse among members of the clans and septs of Clan Chattan and to hold meetings from time to time.

Mrs Modes is quite proud that she traces back to the McIntoshes of Scotland hundreds of years ago.

One of the outstanding members was late George Bernard Shaw who was always proud of this connection.

When in Washington, D. C., in 1948, Mrs. Modes met relatives of high social distinction from overseas for the first time through common membership in Clan Chattan.

Members of the McIntoshes clan will find the home country steeped rich in Highland history from the 2th century from the olden days when the first McIntosh chief, supposed to be Shan MacDuff, son of the third earl olf Fife, came to the Highlands.

MacDuff took the name of "MacanToisch" which means son of the chief of thane and on or about 1163 he came to the north with King Malcolm IV, to quell rebellious outbreaks by the men of Moray. As a reward, he got land in Petty, Breakley and in the Findhorn valley and established his stronghold, the first home of the Mackintoshes, on an island in Loch Moy which is situated in front of the present residence.

The island, thickly wooded, is still there but the stronghold has long since disappeared, and so have other homes of the Mackintoshes chiefs built on the mainland until the present Hall was erected about 1800. The existing Hall has been steadily added to since that time till in the days of the former chief, it was one of the most ornate and elaborate clan homesteads in the Highlands. This Hall was prominently associated with the Jacobean era. There is still the bed on which Prince Charles slept in the days before the tragic Battle of Culloden, a relic which, retained by the present Mckintosh, recalls in a way the famous rout of Moy.

The story is told that the then Lady Mackintosh, a lady with strong Jacobean tendencies, heard of a bid by Lord Louden to capture the prince and so end the Civil war, she solicited the aid of Donald Fraser, the estate blacksmith, to circumvent the attempt. Donald—whose sword is also still among the relics at Moy—along with about seven other stalwarts, lay in wait for the raiders—men of the Macleod clan—as they made their way to Moy and by shouting war cries of Lochiel, Keppoch and other clans, and with bagpipers, playing the pipes furiously, confused the enemy so that the enemy fled in confusion. This was known as the "Rout of Moy."

It is said that the earnest endeavor of the present chief is to bring his clan together in a happy family footing. And to this end he is in communication with many Mackintoshes in the United States, Canada, New Zealand and other foreign countries.

In the Journal of the Clan Chattan Association there are many interesting anecdotes and much ancient history is uncovered. It tells of the anniversary, the 300th, of the execution of James, first marquis of Montrose. In a memorial service there was placed a wreath on his t[illegible] by the duke's 5-year-old grandson, Lord Fintrie.

The very Rev. Dr. Charles Warr, dean of the Thistle and Chapel Royal, delivered the sermon, saying that it was to commemorate the life and death of one of Scotland's greatest and bravest sons—a man whose name after three centuries is still reverend for his chivalry and gallant fortitude.

"Montrose's name," said the spaker, "emerged untarnished from the research of historians and the Scottish church must always regret the hour when ,in obstinancy and folly, it excommunicated him. When he left the Covenanting party and offered his sword to the king, he did not renounce the national covenant. He only repudiated the lawless arrogance into which the original covenanting cause had degenerated. And on the gallows he said "I leave my soul to God, my service to my prince, my goodwill to my friends, my love and charity to you all and thus briefly I have exonerated my conscience. God have mercy on this afflicted land."

JAILED MOTHER GAINS FREEDOM

Released Under Bond After Refusing To Serve As Juror

Waterloo Ia. May 19.—(AP)—A Waterloo mother was at home today with her two small sons for whose sake she went to jail rather than serve as a juror in a murder trial.

Mrs. Jeanette Watson 37 was released from the Black Hawk County jail last night after the Iowa state supreme court agreed to hear her appeal from a six months contempt of court sentence in the state women's reformatory.

The sentence was imposed by District Judge Shannon B. Charlton Thursday after Mrs. Watson told him she could not sit on the jury because "I've got two children at home with no one to take care of them." Her two sons are aged eight and five.

The supreme court declared her case would be reviewed at its September session It set bond of $500.

Mrs. Watson's attorney drove to Des Moines filed an appeal and returns to Waterloo to post the bond and free her from jail. She had been in jail about 26 hours.

The case created a furore all over Iowa. Governor William S. Beardsley told a news converence he had received "several protests by telephone and telegraph" about the jailing of Mrs. Watson.

Mrs. Watson the wife of a Waterloo tool designer was the 12th juror chosen to hear evidence in the re-trial of Edward J. (Buddy) Beckwith who is charged with slaying Mrs. Irma Jean Shalhut in 1949.

Beckwith once was convicted and sentenced to be hanged but was granted a new trial by the same court which intervened in the contempt action.

Judge Shannon had told the 12 persons chosen for jury service they would not be allowed to go home or communicate with outsiders during the trial.

Mrs. Watson then refused to take the oath as a juror. She said she had not understood that she would not be allowed to go home nights while the case was being heard.

The judge advised Mrs. Watson to see an attorney and recessed court. But after court reconvened she refused again to take the oath.

Her husband, William Watson, 44, told the court he had told his wife she should serve on the jury but that he had no way to take care of the children.

Mrs. Watson was warned she faced a contempt penalty, but she still insisted that "I have to have some one to take care of them (her children) before I can take the oath." Her sentencing followed.

Watson took care of the children while the appeal to the supreme court was put in motion by his wife's attorney.

Meanwhile, the trial proceeded with only 11 jurors.

POULTRY OFFERS GOOD REVENUE

So Declares J. J. Joyce Who Cites Figures Of Extension Department

Commercial broiler production is increasing rapidly in Louisiana and last year brought Louisiana poultrymen a total income of about $2,225,000, says Jasper J. Joyce, county agent with your agricultural extension department. Mr. Joyce said that in the Shreveport-Natchitoches trade territory alone there now are more than 100 broiler growers who keep an average of about 300,000 chickens on feed. Joyce pointed out that since broilers are sold at 10 to 12 weeks of age, that figure represents an annual production of a million or more birds.

Mr. Joyce added that although national poultry production has declined considerably since 1944 and 1945, when production was greatly increased to offset wartime shortages of beef and pork, poultry production in Louisiana has held up at a comparatively high level. For example, he pointed out, about ten per cent less chickens were produced in the United States in 1950 than in 1944, but Louisiana poultrymen produced ten per cent more chickens in 1950 than in 1944. Production has fluctuated widely in the past several years, he continued, due to price changes and to the fact that a farmer can get in and out of the poultry business rather easily and quickly, but Louisiana poultry production has more than held its own in comparison to the average for other states.

Joyce added that the type of poultry production in Louisiana is changing rapidly. The total number of small flocks has declined considerably as the number of farm families has declined and the number of chickens kept on farms has decreased considerably while the total number produced has remained at a high level due to the rapid turnover in commercial production. A commercial broiler producer will empty his broiler house several times each year and many who grow poultry for eggs sell out their entire flock once a year, replacing old hens with pullets. In addition, there has been an increase of 13 per cent in the past five years in the number of eggs laid by the average hen.

There still is room for a large expansion of poultry production in Louisiana and that the biggest need right now is for processing plants where growers can sell 3,000 to 30,000 broilers at a time, says Joyce, the county agent.

CHARLES? YOU HAVE A REASON FOR TALKING ABOUT HIM, I SUPPOSE?

I'M THE STUPID FOOL WHO'S BEEN IN LOVE WITH HIM FOR A LONG TIME — AND WHO'S NEARLY LOST HIM, MISS KID. I BUNGLED THINGS TO THE POINT WHERE HE THOUGHT I LOVED SOMEONE ELSE, BUT IT WAS ALL A MISTAKE. I WANT HIM BACK.

HE'S HURT AND ANGRY AT ME. YOU'VE CAUGHT HIM ON THE REBOUND. HE CAN'T MEAN ANYTHING MORE TO YOU THAN AN EXCUSE FOR A CASUAL FLIRTATION... HE MEANS A GREAT DEAL TO ME.

I-I THOUGHT IF I EXPLAINED HOW THINGS STOOD, YOU WOULDN'T...

BRAVO! WHAT A PERFORMANCE! CARRY ON, LIEUTENANT. I CAN USE UP AT LEAST THREE MORE HANKIES BEFORE I TELL YOU TO GO SOAK YOUR HEAD.

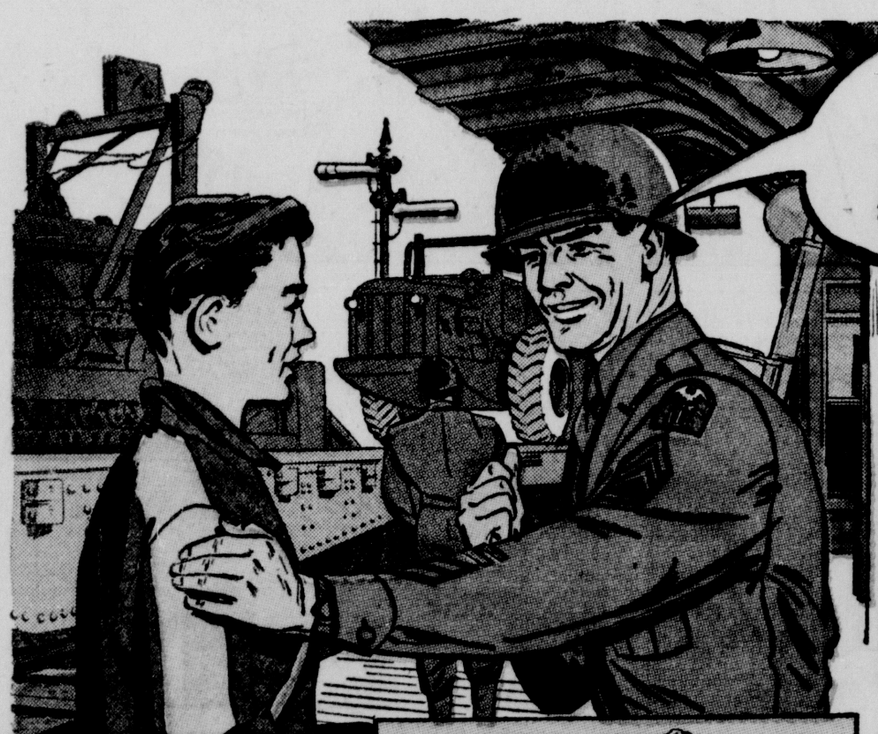
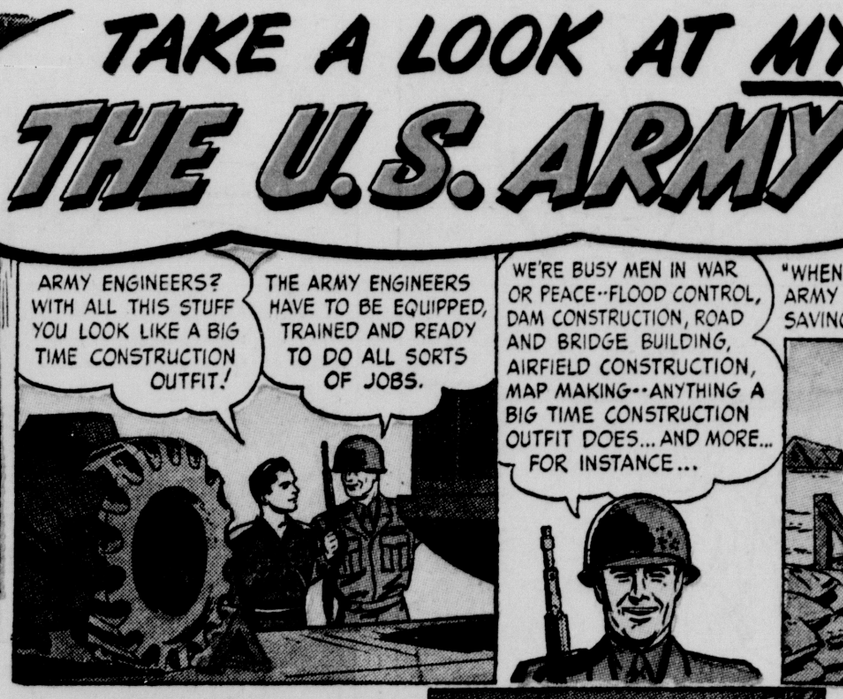
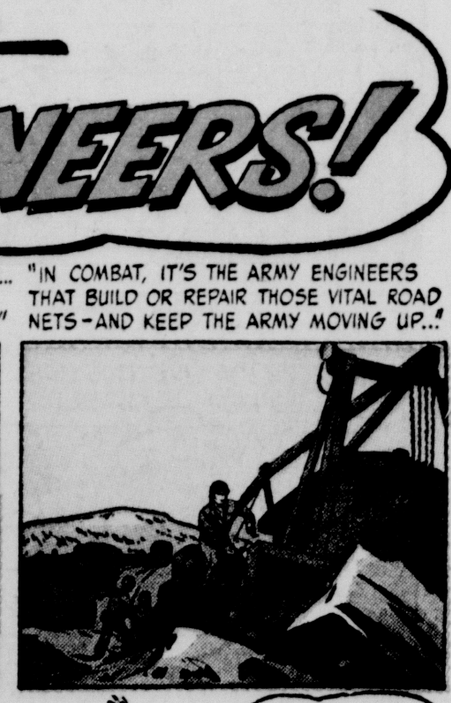
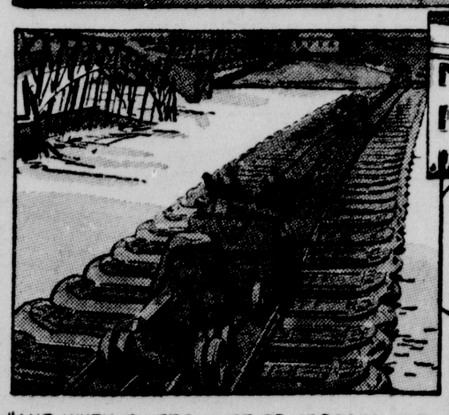
TAKE A LOOK AT MY OUTFIT— THE U.S. ARMY ENGINEERS!









Everyone asks that question. Not everybody can be an engineer but if you enlist in the U.S. Army, you have a good chance to get valuable technical training in this or any one of 34 or more career fields.

Here's what you do. Go to your nearest U.S. Army and U.S. Air Force Recruiting Station. Ask the Recruiting Sergeant to give you full information about the U.S. Army's Technical School System and Career Field guidance.

Remember, first you have to learn to be a soldier. Start now by taking the oath of enlistment before a U.S. Army Officer who will say "Repeat these words after me."

by EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

"LEAVE THIS COUNTRY, OR BE KILLED!" SHE WARNED. THEN, SHUDDERING, SHE CRIED, "IF YOU DON'T, IT WILL GET YOU!"

"HOW DO YOU KNOW THE APE LANGUAGE?" ASKED TARZAN. "WHAT IS 'IT'?" BUT SUDDENLY THE GIRL FLED IN TERROR. THEN THE APE-MAN DETECTED A NEW ODOR--GOMANGANI!

THEY WERE SETTING A TRAP! THESE MEN WERE RESPONSIBLE FOR CAPTURING THE APES! TARZAN SCOWLED RESOLUTELY... HE WOULD PUNISH THE GOMANGANI...
